i pulled a line
from the garble
shook the crap
off it
and saw that tap
is foot rap
(a rat trap)

u lookin'
for a rhyme?
crap is rap with a
'c' for cunt
not c c rider
more like prick
reverse glider
the c c is double cunt
rider
a double cunt glider

r u curious about the line i pulled?

"i'm writing this song, it ain't gonna write itself" (from marshall m)

ask poets and they'll tell u, m the less 'u' write the more the poem writes itself!

it's about less me more poem, the more a poem writes itself the better it reads
a poet merely edits
creation comes from somewhere out there ya gotta feel sorry for ego-bound rappers, it's all about me, me, me, being somebody, something -- (this) poet is all about being no-one,
nobody
(everyone)

'me' is not an issue
nor is any other personal pronoun, ya stay saner longer -- avoid fame, recognition, notoriety but like flies to shit, rappers are ego-captured they chase fame and notoriety and die ignorant/young

'i'm beginning to feel like a crap god rap god'

poets chase the impulse of creation -- God rappers chase their own reflection [clang]

this is anti-rap,
a poem

The 'me' generation was created by the man to alienate, divide and contain. Today it's no longer the powerless 'me' but the powerful, irresistible 'WE!'

We are everyone and we are everywhere -- we cannot be contained. Catch us if you can -- you would sooner catch your shadow than catch the 'anonyms.'

You cannot catch what you can't see or identify -- we are the anonyms of Anonymous. You would catch your shadow b4 you catch any one of us!

One PEOPLE, one GLOBAL revolution, ONE WAVE of CONTINUOUS ACTION ... it never stops!
