

Hardware 'Backdoors' and The Boeing Company (MH370)

I'm not one for conspiracy theories, I deal exclusively in hard verifiable realities and here's a few to mull over, and tempting as it may be, I'm not about to launch myself into the bottomless pit of conjecture, however, some historical knowns require airing at this time. Search for relevant corroborative material yourselves, it will do you all good, I'm spread too thin atm to spoon feed.

Back in the mid 90's Microsoft was exposed for allowing US intelligence agencies into its operating system (OS) via a software 'backdoor' -- in fact firewall packages at the time were alerting users of this backdoor which forced MS to admit its existence. Since then various US corporations have learned that software backdoors are easily detected and exploited by others (hackers) and so other secret access points were discussed and developed with industry and of course the obvious solution was presented -- IC or chip level engineered backdoors that only a select group could access. Intel was approached as was IBM and other American chip manufacturers and these changes were incorporated into ICs and computer CPUs. Readers will note that when the Chinese became aware of these developments they began to manufacture and use their own CPUs, no doubt with their own hardware backdoors!

The above is all historical fact, research and verify for yourselves. Now what has captured the news for weeks and is the topic of global conversation -- the mysterious disappearance of Malaysian BOEING 777 flight MH370, complete with hacked hardware on numerous control boards on the aircraft. But who would be inhuman enough to trigger override and take the plane on a route to oblivion? Well, we refer to recent history and discover that the USA consciously murdered 500,000 innocent Iraqi infants with medical embargoes PRIOR to an illegal invasion, which resulted in over 1.5 million more civilian deaths all for the prize of Iraq's oil resource, which western Oil companies now exploit. This was simply grand THEFT on a State level and to to hell with the cost in human lives, oil companies wanted the oil and so ordered the PUPPET US administration to do its dirty work -- or haven't you woken to reality yet?

I hope that answers the question about ethics and the historical REALITY of a psychopathic mass murdering State!

So we have established the reality of the means and a likely culprit with no regard for human life; but 'why' is the next obvious question?

Before proceeding let it be firmly established that the USA has no peer in the art of distraction, perception management and crowd control, America would be the envy of every totalitarian regime that went before it. America's ability to set the dominant global discourse and media agenda is awesome but fortunately the USA is very weak in other critical areas.

The USA has the ability to lead the public by the nose and getaway with mass murder, human holocausts and the violation of hundreds of international laws and conventions without any challenge of significance to date. Quite an achievement.

We are also aware that whenever the USA embarks on another controversial criminal campaign it first saturates the media with a major distraction like the NSA 'leaker'/agent, Ed Snowden, who serves to distract the public away from the illegality of NSA activities in numerous nations and the fact that the USA is NOW LIABLE to huge international prosecution and penalty for the NSA's numerous breaches of other nations' communications laws, which result in fines and jail sentences for individual offenders. So job well done Ed Snowden! Many other examples exist that readers are free to research for themselves, Bin Laden releasing tapes at very convenient times, on the eve of Bush presidential elections for instance, an 'odd' coincidence.

We have been dealing with historical givens and the simple means by which a modern airliner could be diverted by external parties unknown to Malaysian airlines or anyone else; I would also mention that many other events are now on the back page as a result of MH370 capturing the attention of the global news media. The fiasco in Syria for instance, Jihadists not under the control of the Saudis/US effectively kicking US proxy groups out of the country; we also have the ongoing failure to coherently tackle the climate crisis which threatens to make humanity and many other species extinct, the list goes on and includes freedom fighters in many US occupied nations gaining the upper hand and turning the tide on the thieving marauding mass murdering USA. Be aware that whatever is on the front page is not necessarily the most important news or topic of the day; the media serves its masters not the people or democracy as it once did.

I leave you with more questions but a short list of possible culprits.
