

Irresistible

by top Sunday, May 25 2014, 1:38am

international / prose / post

The happiness quotient

'Fear not for I am with you always, even until the end of time.' A scribe recently penned this sentence; it immediately becomes recognisable as a composite 'Christian' phrase attributed to social and political REFORMER Jesus of Nazareth -- no absurd magic or fantasy is required to understand the reality of his very practical message, reject perverse values, 'money, position and power' and embrace each other in Love as brothers and sisters and cooperate/share everything that the good earth has provided for our needs, simple! No one owns what has been given (to all) freely.

Well there it is again!

Your status or happiness quotient is directly related to how close you live the above universal teaching -- Jesus was simply the last person, of many previous teachers and reformers, to state it!

Have you ever asked yourself -- empiricists/scientists wouldn't dream of it -- WHY the universe came into EXISTENCE or what is behind the impulse to create (existence)? We have all been trained by socially perverse, clinicians and empiricists not to ask questions that demand answers which cannot be expressed in a precise measurable form; we have become Plato's cave-dwellers with an incredibly limited view or appreciation of existence; we have in fact denied ourselves our true heritage as infinite beings in the continuum of creation.

By so doing -- embracing perversity -- we have embraced death/cessation in a continuous universe, a tragic irony indeed; we have in fact created the circumstances for our own demise or end, as our beliefs create our very real REALITIES! I'm not about to sermonise or pontificate, as I know that no-one is below or above anyone else, I would instead simply ask you to remind me who and what I/we really are by using an oblique approach.

- Does Love issue from an external or internal source?

- Is Love measurable or limitless?

- Do we need to be indoctrinated to Love?

Thank you for helping me realise what is INNATE and what is perverse or culturally imposed.

I am now able to appreciate that we are all part of continuous existence and have come into Being for the express purpose of sharing and expressing the innate Love that is the driving force and inspiration of everything, all Creation.

Thank you again for revealing that we are in paradise by heritage and hell by perverse cultural choices.

Existence is ONE continuous JOY!

There is only one permanent cure for fear and that is LOVE.

---

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-1151.html>