

The War They Don't See

by sal Sunday, Jun 1 2014, 11:54am

international / prose / post

Smart warriors fight a superior enemy on the least expected front.

Achilles had a 'trick heel' that he foolishly did not protect and it killed him, who would have thought, least of all Achilles, that an arrow would find his weakness? The lesson is clear, every enemy, regardless of how strong it appears to be, is easily defeated by finding its inherent weakness and exploiting it.

The war America is losing at speed is the war it does not see; America is too busy fighting wars that suit its superiority, but to its great cost America ignores the wars that are bringing it undone, even as I write or wage THAT war.

Obama's recent address to graduating West Point cadets gave the game away. The faggot president affirmed (with emphasis) that he believed in American EXCEPTIONALISM with every fibre of his effeminate, CIVILIAN KILLING being. What Obama means by exceptionalism is simply that the USA can do whatever it likes to whoever it targets, anywhere it chooses; laws, conventions and civilised moral conduct apply to others not to 'exceptional' America - LOL! Of course that attitude is the height of arrogance and carries with it a high (lethal) price.

The war that is all but won against America today is the war that its arrogance and exceptionalism ignored.

Readers may have noticed that this and other alternative news hubs are not very kind to America, in fact, the majority of time and effort is spent portraying America as the vile sociopathic criminal nation that it is. America assists in its own downfall by simply being what it is, an unrepentant, arrogant, reviled state.

Shortly after the collapse of the Soviet Union, America embarked on its lunatic perpetual war quest for world domination; insular neo-cons spear-headed the New American Century of human holocausts, targeted assassinations and resource theft on an international scale. America was winning no friends pursuing this unilateral action, in fact, it was adding enemies faster than you can say, 'failed empire!'

Opposing forces simply directed their attacks on America's real weaknesses until it attained pariah status and as everyone is aware, no nation with that toxic status is able to survive in the world community -- and as Obama confirmed in his speech to West Point cadets, things are not about to change in a hurry.

Put simply America has lost the critical war for hearts and minds. Victory goes to those that waged a relentless and supremely effective information war against the US Imperial war machine and its mass media propaganda apparatus.

<http://tinyurl.com/n854krr>

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-1165.html>