

What oil, I thought it was about spreading democracy in Iraq?

by sam Tuesday, Jun 24 2014, 1:54pm

international / prose / post

Surely U.S. leaders wouldn't brazenly LIE and leave themselves open to legal accountability and war crimes trials, c'mmon they are not that stupid are they?

Forget UN weapons inspectors declaring, prior to the illegal invasion of Iraq, that there were no WMD and that secular dictator Saddam was not in league with religious fanatics.

The civilians that were slaughtered with indiscriminate carpet and relentless drone bombing by the USA were not terrorist actions against civilians, everybody knows that US enemies dress and live like farmers with their families in villages! Killing civilians is a war crime and no American has been indicted for war crimes, right? It's clearly not the partiality of the Hague puppet courts, we are innocent of all charges though our war economy and doctrine of perpetual war narrows our options to fighting wars whether people like it or not.

Any nation that has what we want also has an oppressed minority for us to save and liberate with our 'humanitarian interventions,' which usually kill more civilians than we save, but that 's not our fault, ask Tony Blair and he'll verify it?

The civilian deaths, wanton destruction and chaos that resulted after our humanitarian 26,000 bombing missions in Libya were not the consequence of using fanatic extremists (ISIS) to fight our ground war, it's because using Muslim extremists to fight and kill moderate Muslims is good policy, we wouldn't support, train and unleash criminal gangs to kill, rape and steal, we are the world's leading democracy, it's not our fault if the population has no idea what real democracy is.

It becomes necessary to use police state tactics to maintain order and to grope the genitals of citizens in order to keep them safe from terrorist perverts working for the government.

Even if you're right about one issue, you forget that America is "exceptional" and God is on OUR side, we have a divine role to play on earth, Jesus said, judge them by their actions/fruit, not what we say, our record is almost perfect and is entirely consistent, we KILL, KILL and keep killing because we are spreading peace around the globe, there is nothing inverted in that logic!

We know the entire world hates us because we bake apple pies, what other reason could there be? Rumsfeld was right when he said, free people are free to commit holocaust crimes, rape, pillage and destroy.

If in any doubt just remember America always prevails, we are winners and don't you forget it because we are not so sure at the moment!

<http://www.tomdispatch.com/blog/175860/>

