Citizenfour Documentary

Empires do not fail they implode one way or another depending on how they function. The USA has created a monumental problem as it is 'contractionist' to the extreme; contractionism is much like a classic Freudian 'anal retentive' that attempts to control every minute thing or detail and so we have hyper-contractionism with pan-surveillance, indefinite detention without trial or charge and 'legal' assassinations at a stroke of the president's pen. Of course the natural reaction by free thinking, intelligent creative people employed in sensitive demanding fields that are aware of the government's criminal activities is to leak vital information and subvert the criminal government and the shadowy forces that control it.

While the USA has done a superb job dumbing down the vast majority of the population and transforming natural human creativity into hedonism, self-absorption and timidity, these brain dead types are not fit for intelligent demanding, creative work that requires creative thinking and above average skills so the U.S is forced to employ free thinking, creative people with the associated moral values and high levels of integrity that characterise law-abiding superior human beings and therein lies the problem for the criminal government and its ruling corporate masters.

Predictably the number of foreign nationals employed by highly technical corporations has exploded with numerous foreign countries represented; foreign nationals now occupy extremely sensitive positions -- there's no choice as there is not enough local brain to go around and every corporation now competes with others to attract competent staff to their ranks, the bottom line is always the overriding factor in filling positions so all manner of people that have not been subjected to American 'culture' are employed, notwithstanding that the very highest positions continue to be occupied by locals.

I am only familiar with Australians that have been employed by large American IT corporations and am intimately aware of how things work in those companies regardless of intimidating non-disclosure contracts, which are an affront to most free spirited Aussies; Australian experts have even been employed in the most sensitive military areas only to become disillusioned and pass vital information back to home base. I would note at this stage that Chinese, whether or not they have US citizenship, almost always relay information back to China, Indians are the least likely foreigners to spy on American corporations as they are by nature extremely self-interested.

Americans have another huge problem in that they are extremely short term thinkers and almost never see the long term consequences of their actions but not so foreigners that are usually very patient and self-disciplined.

The situation has now reached what could be described as an internal war with intelligent Americans and foreigners all conspiring independently against the criminal machinations of corporations and government; and so we have a major problem that idiotic contractionism has created. I should also mention Mormons that fill highly sensitive positions, their primary allegiance is always to the Church and regardless of their almost universal right wing disposition, they have not forgotten the persecution they suffered at the hands of the State, which murdered their founder and leader, Joseph Smith.

My recommendation is as clear as any intelligent reader would have gathered, loosen up Amerika, you are killing yourself! We expect to see an avalanche of high profile leakers in the not too distant future and justice finally served on the criminal elites, perhaps it really is the end of the American empire, we shall see how long the inevitable takes if current policies are not changed.

A concluding note on personnel screening: the reason that most 'leakers' -- a broad term today -- easily pass through screening processes is that they become disillusioned in the job, the closer you get to a turd the more rancorous the stench!
