

The Biggest Tragedy of 9/11

by jay Sunday, Oct 19 2014, 10:36am

international / prose / post

The most tragic aspect today of the 9/11 false flag is that people continue to believe the Government Report which has so many holes in it, it makes Swiss cheese look solid.

I was recently having what I thought was a sensible conversation with a uni student completing a commerce degree. I took for granted he had learned during the course of his uni studies essential disciplines such as 'interrogating' the culturally 'given' and eventually come up with the real, and to definitely never take anything at face value. However, I was sorely disappointed in him and the new Australian 'user pays' tertiary education system, which prioritises the need for cash over proper education -- universities today tend to be more lenient on 'George Bush' type students, dummies, in other words.

When I mentioned 9/11 and the simple fact that kerosene is incapable of melting or cutting hardened steel frame structures and that the gov story was a fraud, to my astonishment he said "no, no, no," as though he was afraid to confront the reality of the situation, I naturally inquired what was wrong, his shocking response was, "if I accept that 9/11 was not as the government says the implications are far to extreme to consider," my response was immediate, "so the sources you believe are the mass media and governments, which both have a historical reputation for disingenuity and promulgating lies for various reasons. I did not mention that it is impossible for a large steel frame building to collapse vertically on its own footprint unless charges have been strategically placed to cut through the steel frames, but instead said, "ignorance is bliss", ay! Which I thought later is the condition in which most Americans actually live.

As inferred above the 9/11 government story is so easily refuted based on simple reason and scientific evidence only a moron or denialist would swallow it.

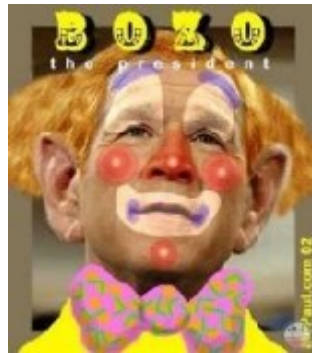

I have also been assisting a foreign student with his essay writing and I must say the finished work he gives me to vet is appalling, there is no way his work would have passed anywhere in Australia prior to the user pays system, but he received a pass for his gibberish in a prestigious university, the degree course he has chosen sets fees that total $75K/student, so there you have it, a nation that allows substandard students to gain degrees is headed for disaster -- it should be noted that after completing their courses foreign students are able to apply for permanent residence so educating foreigners has become a large income earner nationally.

Soon, if the current trend continues, the 9/11 fraud will be incidental and the fictions that will swamp numerous societies will be utterly impossible but readily believed -- it sort of makes you think it has been planned that way - LOL!

Corporate sponsors and organisations in Australia now wish to introduce themselves into the curriculum of high schools so impressionable youth will readily accept working as slaves for 'nice' corporations; fortunately resistance is strong politically but it will not endure as history has proven countless times in the past.

I'd never thought I'd live to see the day, which unfortunately is today.

George 'dubya' Bush

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-1317.html>