

Trails

by serge Saturday, Jan 3 2015, 10:03am international / poetry / post follow different trails to their end and discover they all end in the same place;

is that really so unusual?

people are apt to believe that varying directions must lead to varying destinations but i am not referring to train rides or a weekend drive, if u wish to discover the source of all things refuse to dwell on the periphery follow the most immediate trails sight and sound, and discover they both lead to the brain as the real organ of sense but that is not the desired destination as the brain is simply a creation not an end in itself, there is more

it follows that if indeed a single event or a single source
-- absurdly referred to as God by the ignorant and lazy -- produces all things then that source must be traceable by reversing the usual process of pluralistic distractions and the tendency of the mind to flow out into plurality rather than in to singularity with dogged determination pursue the goal and do not cease until the source of all things is encountered

sacrilege, the religionists say, apprehending God is not done by mere mortals the decision rests in God's mercy or grace

Crap! which omnipresent, omniscient God plays hide and seek? Of course only the false Gods created by men to enslave and weaken humanity, as God is always imminent in its creation what need does an all-powerful God have of words or mortal helpers, is not God omnipotent?

Any clown today that professes s/he speaks for God or that s/he has authority from God is a LIAR or deluded, the world is not short of fools however, a 'book' does exist that contains all knowledge of God and therefore all things, that book is the Silence borne of unrelenting focus and the exclusion of all thought -- it is unwavering consciousness!

is infinity wanting or troubled that it must ruminate?
infinity is timeless, instantaneous, immeasurable?

existence is continuum
without past or future, the process of continuity only occurs in the present, the location of reality

the human mind has been thoroughly corrupted by culture and culture only exists in the past -- what need of custom or culture does infinity have?

so if u would know the source of all things follow any one thing back to its source, as the source of all things is ONE