

Where Does All the Money Go?

by joe Tuesday, Mar 24 2015, 12:14am

international / prose / post

The Fed and its major reserve banks throughout the world have been printing money like toilet paper for years, thousands of trillions in fact, but if you're an average citizen you see almost none of it; nevertheless, money doesn't just disappear, someone appropriates it, so the huge 2008 'economic crisis/collapse' as it's known in the media, was only a collapse for those that didn't get the cash, that's the first indisputable point I would like to make.

The second is where did all those thousands of trillions of digital and printed dollars go, which were subsequently printed to 'ease' the economic crisis and stimulate hollowed out economies? Again, average citizens have seen none of it, in fact average citizens have been subjected to austerity programs throughout the world even in one of the world's wealthiest per capita nations, Australia.

Well, a little research reveals that the banks involved in creating the crisis have received the lion's share of printed funds around 99.99% in fact yet those institutions demand more and more easy paper and digital money in order for them to 'recover' - lol! If you smell a RAT at this stage you have a normal sense of smell.

The first question that goes begging is how on earth would the organisations that hollowed out the global economy need more funds? The second question is what is all this worthless money doing as money must 'work' or move in order to retain its illusory or superimposed, ideological value.

The less than 1% recipients of all those trillions are more aware than we of the need to work those worthless paper funds and so they are utilising them to purchase REAL assets, such as real estate, arable land and for wealth extraction processes such as agriculture, mining, energy etc, etc, yet where those extraction processes are in place the people see almost none of the benefits of the rapacious 'enterprises,' only more cut-backs and austerity, make sense does it?

You do not have to be a genius to realise someone is being jilted and that 'someone' is you, if you are the average citizen or on a lower scale - "let them eat cake," indeed!

So the enormous wealth stolen in 2008 combined with the staggering amount of injected funds has created the world's most wealthy minority class -- a super elite criminal class of corruptors and vanquishers. And yet very few common folk are complaining and even less actively opposing this absurd and extremely unjust, unfair, status quo.

In essence mega-bankers stole the money in 2008 (proven) and are also hogging the vast majority of stimulus funds printed since – does that sound okay, kosher or fair to you?

In the first instance the known criminal fraudsters that perpetrated the global ‘collapse’ (theft) should have been rounded up, placed on trial and jailed for many years but they used the wealth they had stolen to buy entire governments and they avoided the consequences of their criminal actions while we citizens continue to be fined and shot (in America) for misdemeanours! Again you don’t have to be asked what is wrong with this picture as it is as obvious as dog’s balls!

The world definitely does not lack funds it lacks an equitable distribution of wealth and if any political party ignores or fails to act on this injustice then know them by their stripe and works and permanently withdraw your support in favour of local representatives that would pursue the mega-rich for the money they have stolen – it really is that simple. Either pursue them in uncorrupted legal systems or use your vote to install real people with fair principles into government that would restore equity to society and break the flimsy, ideological chains of debt-slavery to a proven criminal elite.

There is no real economic problem or rather the created economic problem is one purely of inequity and the extremely lopsided distribution of wealth, which injustice is causing ALL the economic hardships and social problems in the world today – it couldn’t be clearer.

It is time for the overwhelming majority to reassert their enormous power and restore real democracy and eliminate corrupted, minority serving governments around the world.

The very first requisite is to revive your courage and stand on principle; take back your respective nations and the right to determine the value of your local currency, are you reading this Greece? All the economic claptrap of hardship and austerity is pure lies, in a word the problem is INEQUITY and shirking tax responsibilities.

The criminal mega-rich fear the people as one day coming soon they will wake up to the rort being perpetrated even as I write.

Greece must immediately default on all its engineered enslaving debt and begin printing its own currency to stabilise the local economy, once done the world would follow and the criminal banks would have lost the power of illusion over money. Overnight imposed hardships would become remnants of a bygone era in criminal world history.

Any major political party that does not target greedy, mega-wealthy thieves is working to serve them, plain to see in Australia, America and Europe – the remedy is quite literally in OUR hands.

---

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-1518.html>