This BBC documentary series focuses on the huge disparity in wealth that exists today and how the 1% have made it happen -- essentially by lying to the public via their corporate mass media and controlling today's gutless and incompetent puppet politicians, which result is not to be unexpected from avaricious manipulating people. The problem of course rests with the masses that continue to passively accept the rapid decline in their quality of life and the media propaganda bullshit of professional liars and cheats.

It is no longer time for debate, it's pitchfork and guillotine time! Sudden social equalisation has happened many times before as historical records testify and the likelihood of it occurring again soon, seems highly probable. "Let them eat cake," indeed.

Follow the series on youtube or other mediums and then either accept the appalling and unfair status quo or emphatically and persistently reject it!
