

“To see what is in front of one's nose requires constant struggle” -- George Orwell

by alias Tuesday, May 12 2015, 1:27pm

international / prose / post

As usual Orwell is right on the button; today, as Orwell predicted, few see the forest for the tress, in fact, fewer still see anything that isn't packaged by the mass media. And so the REAL crisis of climate change, which threatens the tenure of humanity and the earth as we know it, is backgrounded by Kim Kardashian's tits and empty head. But how much more vacuous are the heads of the digitally captured slave herd that 'follow' Kardashian on twit-ter and 'facefuck?'

To quote Orwell again, and I would add that his predictions are more accurate than all the the so-called 'prophets' of the Old Testament that spoke in ambiguous vagaries. "During times of universal deceit, telling the truth becomes a revolutionary act." Indeed, another crystal clear truth, as is evidenced today by the manic pursuit of whistle-blowers whose crime in societies controlled by criminals, is telling the truth. Take your daily mass media lies and propaganda with a spoonful of tits and everything will be alright, you invertebrate dunces. Question the mass murdering, plundering and polluting corporate and banker elites and you're in for it, as soon as they locate and use your meta-data against you.

The unambiguous message today is never question or compromise Big Brother, which is spreading peace worldwide via perpetual war, another perfect Orwellian pronouncement of a sick society's inverted morality, logic and sanity.

That's it as I am now so thoroughly disgusted with the status quo I am not about to reveal how to replace it without a shot being fired or a brick hurled in aggravated anger - and you suckers even fell for that! The US riots serve only to justify and increase police/State oppression, you dumbarses, to tell the truth you're not worth a pinch of shit. It is you, the people, that allowed criminals to hijack western democracies, trash your civil liberties, debt-enslave entire nations by rogues that print paper money from thin air - another example of your collective 'bravery and intelligence.'

Frankly, I have better things to do like enjoy my freedom, which remains intact as I have never used a smartphone in my name or signed up to any monitored social networks, I am old school which developed its digital disciplines when it was expected that aliases maintained one's anonymity, freedom and safety.

And so Big Brother continues chasing phantasms, as it will never identify anyone that does not 'subscribe' -- O, have I let it slip? Consider it a pearl you may never locate in the shit and mud of the pigsty you now inhabit by choice.