

The Stats are in Oz is Awash with Drugs

by justin Saturday, May 16 2015, 1:29am

international / prose / post

We should first recall pathologically lying Tony Abbott's remark, that "our police are the best in the world," well Mr Abbott, reality shreds ANOTHER of your pathetic LIES - you will never implement a police State here and furthermore I have no idea why the Australian people continue to tolerate you as leader of our nation, my demented grandmother could do a better job simply by not following the directions of the corporate elite, I shall explain why soon.

Unrepresentative dunce LIAR, Tony Abbott

It is the AFP, which is too busy playing politics that is responsible for allowing literally tonnes of illicit drugs into our island nation and state police that are responsible for allowing the explosion in local production - FACT, Mr Abbott, and as previously stated by another contributor to this site, if our police are the best, one could hardly imagine the worst!

Now a simple walk down history lane informs us that legalisation is the answer so why hasn't it occurred to date, though the solution is obvious?

America woke to the fact that criminalising alcohol only resulted in the formation of powerful organised crime syndicates which developed into the huge multi-trillion dollar corporate structured industry that it is today and allowed criminals to wield vast influence over governments with the wealth they accumulated thanks to conservative, contractive ignoramuses like Tony Abbott.

The plain reason most illegal drugs are not legalised is that it is a multi-trillion dollar industry, the money earned finds its way first to offshore banking havens/states and then back into the system where it 'miraculously' becomes legal and fills the coffers of 'respectable' banks that assist their corporate clients - I am talking HUGE sums here.

Now if drugs were legal the enormous profits from the illicit trade would be reduced to pennies, and that is clearly why governments, which are largely controlled by global banking and corporate elites, will never legalise illicit drugs; THEY are ADDICTED to the money the illegal trade generates which would vanish almost overnight if the substances were legalised - plain to see.

Furthermore, the glamour of illicit use would be eliminated and government would be able to effectively manage use, production and profits, thereby eliminating the dire social scourge of the illicit drug trade. But do not expect any enlightened solutions from conservative puppet politicians like Tony Abbott who obediently serves the banker corporate elites.

All one need do to verify the above is follow the money from shady offshore banking havens to the 'respected' banks on Wall St. and the City of London. Numerous large banks have recently been exposed for laundering zillions in black funds -- the penalty; executives received a slap on the wrist and (relatively) negligible fines, which hardly impacted the guilty banks, criminal bankers and various illicit activities.

You want the truth, look to America where white collar organised crime, awash with funds, now completely rules and oppresses a once free democratic nation.

A global solution would be to re-introduce the death penalty for political TREASON which would subvert the power of organised crime in high places as no western government today represents the best interests of the people; they all clearly serve minority criminal interests, which have structured, over the years, more ways to plunder and destroy once healthy societies. The FACT is that money MUST be 'moved' and made to 'work' by bankers otherwise it loses its value. And there is far too much money involved in the inflated illegal trade to ever hope for a sane and effective solution from clearly corrupt puppet politicians, isn't that right Mr's Cameron, Obama and Abbott, you traitorous, murdering stooges.

So keep up the transparent lies, you're all inadvertently fomenting the broad disaffection with government and violent revolution, perhaps the elite have planned it so and developed draconian counter-measures - look to the USA again!

The message for Australians is simple, withdraw all support from the two major incompetent puppet parties, we are able to restore democracy, fairness and justice here as it is part of our traditional cultural values though other larger authoritarian nations have all but fallen into the hands of the most heinous white collar criminals, which Abbott is at pains to serve.

Follow link for statistical report on the explosive drug problem in Oz, notwithstanding that incompetent puppet politicians are completely responsible, as effective PROVEN solutions have been available for decades.

<http://www.businessinsider.com.au/report-australias-drug-trade-is-at-a-record-high-2015-5>

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-1615.html>