

The Revolutionary Power of Song and Poetry

by marco Friday, Oct 5 2012, 11:50pm

international / prose / post

I cannot stress this information enough, and please verify every claim I make for yourselves.

Ever since written language, and before in relation to song, poets have encoded and formulated the direction -- most religious texts are essentially poetic narratives -- of society. Now be aware that today vile, mass murdering financial elites have no talent or resource in this regard; effective, inspirational poetry and revolutionary song arise from an innate sense or the just hearts of men and women.

Every successful revolution and effective social movement had/have SONGS/poetry and a strong narrative to gather the masses or group in given directions. Rhythm, rhyme and song act on deep layers of the human psyche and there is nothing more effective or inspiring than gathered passionate human voices chanting/singing SONGS of change and reform.

Why do you think information juggernaut Google goes to extraordinary lengths to suppress political poetry sites, or sites that run revolutionary narratives and dissenting songs? The current 'chairwoman' of Google, Eric Schmidt, is a regular attendee at Bilderberg meetings. He and his band of evil, mass murdering, soulless, financial Corporate elitists plan and determine international policy, war and economic hardship for most of the world's population WHILE THEY forever take the greater share of available wealth. THESE VILE PSYCHOPATHS HAVE NO ANSWER TO POETRY OR REVOLUTIONARY SONG, it can't be produced without a SOUL, SO THEY ARE ONLY ABLE TO SUPPRESS IT where they are able!

Listen to the songs of previous revolutions, recall the popular, highly effective protest songs of the 60's that created a global social movement and put an end to the unjust Vietnam war and take heart. Support your poets, lyricists and song writers and FORTIFY yourselves in SONG.

Australian Aborigines once SANG their tribal opponents to death -- this is NOT a fanciful anthropological observation! Listen to the SONG of striking South African miners today and LEARN/feel the powerful 'rhythms' of change. Revolutionary SONGS and poetry strike terror into the hearts of evil men, they simply have no answer.

Disseminate this message widely and support this and other CREATIVE political poetry sites. Google is doing everything in its power to covertly suppress this and other sites without obviously resorting to de-listing. Google is now actively engaged in attacking all alternative news and dissenting sites. Comprehensive weblogs tell the story, as they are easily able to monitor Google traffic.

Come together in song and SING the evil forces ruining our lives and WORLD out of existence.

Peace.

