It must be accepted that social change/reform only occurs when the majority demand it. The numerous analysts and commentators of the alternative media are “pissing in the wind” revealing facts and truths/REALITY to the masses -- as dubya Bush once expressed it, on elite advice I would hasten to add. So the stark reality that the captured masses would rather line up in the streets to purchase the latest digital gadget rather than assert their social prerogative and exercise democratic influence over their non-representative governments has to be addressed or preaching to the miniscule percent of converted would continue without effect.

PM Tony Abbott and opposition leader Bill Shorten, elite lackeys

The LIES and distractions that emanate from the State are continuous and pervasive, in Australia the nation is faced with a PROVEN lying scoundrel with the integrity of a $2 whore occupying the highest office in the land yet the people accept this gross injustice rather than demand that PM Tony Abbott is prosecuted for the deliberate, calculated frauds he perpetrated on the people in order to gain office; furthermore, proof of the fraud is available in the public domain so the case to remove a criminal from office would be a mere formality.

The corporate owned news media of course supports its installed puppets as they require obedient servants to implement elite plans, which also explains why opposition parties are hamstrung, they serve the same interests, as history clearly indicates. So looking to thoroughly captured corrupt government for answers or reform is absurd. The majority are aware of their predicament yet continue to accept the intolerable conditions (unnecessary austerity policies and increased taxes) incrementally imposed on them as they clearly lack the will or the courage to change the elite designed status quo.

Faced with these simple undeniable realities it is little wonder that some frustrated individuals/groups take to direct action, as the “Weather Underground” once did in the USA. The State and all its criminal puppets and automatons could only thank their lucky stars that parties offended by criminal State activity, unnecessary austerity and surveillance, have not yet acted, as the State to date has only been challenged by morons, fools, ‘useful idiots’ and inbred religionists.

Any highly trained and disciplined special forces veteran is able to take out anyone, media mogul, politician, whoever he chooses alone and at will, fact! Consider a small highly skilled group of disillusioned veterans that know the truth by virtue of their military service in corporate wars and you have a bunch of buffoons (proven) in State regulatory agencies running in circles as these veterans know how to communicate under the radar that only captures the communications of the ineffective insouciant masses. I only highlight this one real possibility which corrupt, incompetent State buffoons would face if they continue in their clearly treasonous endeavours and oppressive social policies, there are many more likely scenarios that are independent of veterans though some of these potential actors have been trained by special forces, who were in turn trained by the best military experts the nation has to offer.

So it is not a matter of mobilising the masses any longer it is the unstoppable actions of elite trained and disciplined experts the corrupt State and all its inefficient apparatuses would face and from my knowledge it would amount to a tragic circus for the government.

Imagine Tony Abbott, an open target, or any other servile, elite compliant politician, Mr Shorten, killed with deadly accuracy every week, add to that a media mogul of your choice that dares to show his face or set foot in the country and you have a revolution instigated and waged by less than five individuals. This is a likely scenario based on information obtained from the underground, not media hype, distortion, distraction or speculation.

Agencies would be at a loss as they would have no leads or communications to pursue except perhaps a common calibre projectile fired from a different barrel/weapon on each occasion, notwithstanding expert demolitions knowledge. Now consider the efficacy of NSA type pan-surveillance, which fails on every occasion to stop a hack attack or other compromising event and you have a reality to consider.

I write this analysis not to alarm but as a warning to those arrogant elites and their servants as I am aware that some members of society that know too much, have had enough of the lies, and punishing policies of non-representative criminal governments and the media that support them.

I have been informed, by my pet budgie, with frightening clarity it would be a turkey shoot.

Now, regulatory agencies, do your fucking best, you haven't got a hope as this piece is based on conjecture, rumour and hearsay. I would add, I never advocate violence but as a social analyst I understand it.
