

The Two Major Party Charade and Why it Continues

by stella Thursday, Aug 13 2015, 4:18am

international / prose / post

America has entered its carnival election cycle and you guessed it, the corporate mass media is concentrating on the two corporate OWNED major parties as usual. I would add that the nose-ringed American alternative media is also SUBJECT to the orchestrated ruse as its content also refers primarily to the race between Republican and Democrat contenders. So what happened to our experience and knowledge, which has taught us that this absurd 'race' is an orchestrated CHARADE and that the winner has already been chosen by the ruling oligarchy/plutocracy? I guess it got lost in the 24 hour news/propaganda cycle of the mass media's making. We can't have public memory, experience and knowledge interfering with our game and tight grip on the nation, one could almost hear CFR members and media moguls murmur. Indeed, they can't, and so a constant stream of the two party 'race' is already reaching saturation level.

However, nature has endowed us all with a memory which is the primary component to LEARNING. So there really are no excuses, as all anyone is required to do is remember that contenders from either party lie through their teeth to the public, and after being sworn in immediately renege on pledges and promises and follow the prescribed elite agenda, this process has been clearly evident since corporate lackey Bill Clinton occupied the White House.

Are we morons to fall for the same old crap and have our consciousness narrowed to only two options when a myriad of alternatives to this tired game exist? Well, if the shoe fits...!

Every western nation plays the same game and on each electoral occasion the public fall for it hook, line and 'sinker' and the major reason for this tragedy is the mass media circus that always manages to present a known fixed race as an exciting race/event though we all know it's a croc!

Have we forgotten so soon how Obama, Mr Hope and CHANGE, promised to close Guantanamo, create more transparency in government and withdraw from Middle Eastern wars? Now compare lies to reality, the Obama administration is more secretive than the criminal Bush administration, rather than transparency Obama pursues whistleblowers with a vengeance, he has increased military interventions around the globe and presided over criminal 'signature' drone strikes while boasting openly that he didn't realise that "killing would be his strong suit" -- so much for the Nobel peace prize! But why should we fall for it yet again, it is no secret that Hillary is the choice of the plutocrats and every effort will be made to install her as the next lackey to the ruling elite - has it occurred to any sane person that 'pax Americana' or world domination is impossible, not least because populations around the globe would fight tooth and nail to prevent any foreign nation conquering them, as is clearly evident today. However, 'pax Americana' is an enduring myth/insanity and part of the elite agenda so expect the predictable after the presidential race is over.

If you wish to take back your nation then first avoid falling for the same simplistic media inducements and lies then use the brain that nature endowed you with and perhaps install a complete outsider into office who is not beholden to any lobby, group or special interest - that is one road back to representative democracy. There are innumerable options available one only has to think not swallow the crap that issues like sewage from the mass media on a daily basis.

It is clear that any candidate from a major party is a puppet, liar and deceiver, is that the type of person you wish to install as leader only to serve unrepresentative minority interests?

The other prevailing myth is that huge sums of money are required to mount a challenge NOT SO, the simplest and most inexpensive method of getting your message out and enlisting support is the internet; recall how Obama utilised the digital medium to great advantage. Anyone can do the same if they think outside the box or am I talking to media lobotomised drones again, I sincerely hope not?

Be assured, history and experience has taught us all that falling for the two party charade will change nothing only make things worse than they already are, as history has proven. America has a great advantage over other western democracies, the PEOPLE are legally commissioned to remove all non-representative criminal governments and their lying duplicitous leaders from power and restore the nation to a representative democracy. Or have we forgotten everything we have learned and experienced?

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-1781.html>