Former chief of staff to Tony Abbott, Peta 'digital graffiti' Credlin, recently attempted to paint herself in a positive light by claiming emphatically -- her style -- that she was the principal behind Abbott's successful opposition campaign against two former Labor leaders. Granted, she is correct in that regard BUT she avoided taking responsibility for his downfall as a leader of government in which she also played the principal role.

Peta Credlin, sick bitch

To quote madam 'control freak' herself, ".. I worked my guts out for six years to go from opposition to government'," she said." Few would dispute it, however, the venom was expected and it followed, "I refuse to be defined by insider gossip from unnamed sources where no-one has the guts to put their name to it;" she is talking about members of her own party/government here, tact and teamwork are clearly not her best character traits. Also, in a revealing twist, Abbott took the same approach (coincidence?) during his final, official media statement, he blamed the (anonymous) alternative ('digital graffiti') media for his downfall and sniped at the mass media for assisting, when non-performance and lack of ability were obviously the major reasons for his downfall.

Abbott, in only two short thoroughly incompetent years put Australia back ten years; Credlin, who clearly controlled Abbott's mind, and assisted by her obedient, well-trained, attack dog, required no help or intervention in the train wreck of their own making, full stop! So Ms gutless, display at least a modicum of character and courage and take FULL responsibility for your major contribution in Abbott's downfall -- you are looking for a job, aren't you, Ms toxic? Enough space wasted on those two compulsively combative, destructive, "binary" thinking losers and flawed personalities.

Most respected commentators have arrived at similar conclusions, Abbott and of course Credlin have only themselves to blame for the unprecedented ousting of a first term PM, 'great work,' and good luck looking for a job, bitch!

Conservative former treasurer to Howard, Peter 'low altitude flyer' Costello, has made it very clear indeed, he approved of Abbott's removal, 'for the good of the country,' implied. However, heartless, callous and politically appointed new bereft treasurer, Scott Morrison, has been forced to seek advice from Peter Costello and his former staffers directly, as it is clear he hasn't got a clue about running a national economy, which is in urgent need of reform and competent management -- I should have said FAIR reform. Are you reading this Labor dunderheads and strategists? Turnbull is easily defeated, he is a full of shit elitist and is as transparent as glass, he is also obliged to follow elite globalist dictates like Abbott AND Shorten, however, INDEPENDENT, experienced, 'anonymous' strategists with guts and proven tactical skills would be able to achieve the victory in twelve months, so good luck with the fifth-rate talents you now overpay - LOL!

The weaknesses of the conservatives are clear to analysts; whether or not Turnbull is able to mitigate and contain the situation is immaterial, the conservatives are extremely vulnerable, as sleazy, lying, G Sachs Turnbull struts, smirks and openly parades his appalling arrogance and non-egalitarian/non-Australian elitism.

Conservatives are now DIVIDED and extremely vulnerable, the only thing maintaining superficial stability are the short term positive polls, which could be turned in an instant by competent, professional media consultants/assassins -- the Libs are sitting ducks and ready for exploitation, however, it's a SUBTLE but lethal gambit that is now required.
