

The America Syndrome - Kill, Destroy and Conquer, War in a Word

The title encapsulates a hard historical and current reality, yet few see the obvious which presents the undisguised USA as it is, a genocidal, conquering, avaricious brute.

Nothing has changed today except America's destructive reach now affects the global population.

Consider the 'Fort Apache,' syndrome, invasion followed by genocide and establishing military bases of occupation/consolidation and facilitating the rape of everything of physical/monetary value, do you see a change in tactics since the 'West was Won,' note the mythologising or propaganda of the times, which veiled the criminal activity, you see, even current propaganda has not changed, blaming and declaring war on the victim. America has ALWAYS been a corporate ruled voracious, rapacious, military nation, regardless of the Hollywood bullshit and portrayal of crime as adventure and 'progress.'

Committing genocide on nations/peoples that stood in the way of avaricious corporate/business interests is par for the American course; compare current reality, 1000 military bases of occupation that America has established throughout the world and you would see that the USA follows exactly the same brutal pattern/agenda since its inception as an independent nation.

Now consider the mythologising or 'propaganda' associated with the wholesale slaughter of native peoples and competing criminal interests, the US Cavalry (military working for business interests) and Wyatt Earp, a sanctioned killer (mercenary) with a badge, eliminating competing criminal influences and clearing the political landscape for business 'development' interests or 'free trade,' for whom?

I find it sometimes absurd that people are shocked at America's criminal behaviour today when its history CLEARLY outlines its character as a criminal nation ruled by corporate/business/banking interests. The USA is actually an open book and is easily defeated if one would care to open their eyes.

So what to do with a malignant, social pestilence that threatens the entire world today? Excise it, as expecting America to change is a dream and unrealistic to the extreme, its people are completely captured by the myths and propaganda of the past and the media LIES of today, change is a lost cause in America, plain to see, as hundreds of years of history are not changed overnight, in fact, the recent implementation of socially oppressive laws and a police state was to be expected.

No criminal nation is able to survive if an enlightened world sees through the lies and becomes aware of its gross criminality. Which nation today is the world leader in flouting international laws and conventions? Take a guess. Which nation today is the world's leading civilian killing (therefore terrorist) criminal nation based on recorded historical fact and statistics? No guess required.

Nonetheless, today things are beginning to change as America's transparent criminality becomes obvious to ALL. Russia has called the American propaganda bluff leaving its murdering ruling elites at a loss, as they imagined they had perfected 'crowd control' or 'perception management.' Putin has called America's absurd bluff and stated plainly that the Emperor has no clothes, he's done more in a week to weaken and eliminate terrorist groups in the Middle East than America and its spineless vassal allies have done in decades. Russia's SUCCESSFUL action has created consternation and the usual reactive response in America, try the same tired formula AGAIN but from a different angle and hope it succeeds this time -- targeting Iran for destabilisation with proxy fighters however, is doomed to fail, not least because Iran/Persia is a seasoned ancient civilisation with thousands of years experience in dealing with inept, delinquent, vandal states. So give it your best shot 'merika, the more you fail the faster you implode.

As for 'ruined' Yugoslavia, NATO and the US have forgotten the Serbs, which effective and well trained military could take back Kosovo almost overnight; and now that Russia, the mother country of all Slavs, has found itself again the time to REALISE international law and UN sovereignty declarations is NOW. The Serbs are also well versed and adapted to successfully combating powerful forces, remember Tito was a master chess player, who was also one of the most adept European politicians and strategists of his time, he managed to play all sides off and maintain his nation's independence, when the Soviet and American Empires divided the world between them after WWII.

The time to regain Kosovo is NOW, not only to restore the sacred heartland but to end US/NATO occupation in the entire REGION; idiot NATO forces are currently concentrated on Russia's borders and no military could be everywhere at once. China and Russia could hardly ignore their traditional Serbian ally a SECOND TIME.

Indeed, the USA and its vassals are a house of cards, notwithstanding their last resort, world war, which the lunatics in Washington and Wall St imagine would cure all their economic, strategic and social ills, indeed it may, and also cure the world of a malignant pestilence.
