

Heart

by liz Monday, Oct 19 2015, 12:29am international / poetry / post willows sway and weep the breeze moves through its draped leaves aquatic birds skim the surface of billabongs and ponds flying or skimming to rest on the water

Being pulses its eternal beat and rhythm through every living thing, few humans respond to its rarefied scintillations and indescribable beauty ceaseless, it courses through veins and nerves exploding softly in the brain then returning through channels of light to its source only to rise again in a never ending cycle of flowing and ebbing tides of bliss

pure Life, beyond seen and unseen beyond cognition -- the dynamic of Being is Life unqualified though Being qualifies all Life the dead concern themselves with death interning their kind in coffins of formality, burying all that Life offers -- for the dead life is only prescribed patterns of static formality

Eternity is without beginning or end beyond the reach of formality, the dead that inhabit a dead realm know nothing of it, the interned remain dead to Life the sun's beam strikes a quartz rock and explodes into colour the living Australian desert brims with Life though few venture to its heart where the moving rainbow serpent dwells

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-1932.html>