

America the Farce Credibility in Tatters

by dan Saturday, Oct 24 2015, 10:12am

international / prose / post

If it looks like a stooge, walks like a stooge, and gallivants around the world acting like a stooge, it's John Kerry, the US Secretary of State.

John Kerry, with the Truth in his eye

Prior to stating the obvious, we must first ask ourselves some direct questions. What has American military foreign policy achieved over the past fifteen years? Has it created the stable liberal democracies it promised anywhere it has violently intervened? No, it has created chaos, needless bloodshed, mayhem and failed State after failed State, it has spawned new terrorist groups the number of which in the world today far exceeds the miniscule amount (of a few hundred) before America decided to 'save' the world from terrorism by launching a war on al-Qaeda terrorists, which today it trains and supports as a proxy fighting force in Syria and Iraq, believe it or not, though it once portrayed this group as "an evil scourge" that threatened western civilisation.

America's foolhardy, ill-advised interventions have resulted in MILLIONS of innocent civilian deaths and TENS of millions of DISPLACED persons, now threatening the stability of Europe. It has caused the world's worst refugee crisis since WWII. And that is not the half of it, if we add its economic vandalism and its direct involvement in the global financial crisis emanating principally from American banks using the medium of juggled and spliced mortgage products, a very clear picture of a thoroughly destruction, criminal and totally incompetent nation emerges.

American incompetence has forced Russia to intervene and create stability in the Middle East, which efforts have proven remarkably effective in only weeks of its campaign. Russia has effectively demonstrated to the world how ineffective, incompetent and dangerous America actually is not that that was its intention. The result of course is America's reputation and credibility are in tatters. Faced with this reality what is Washington doing, sending its globalist stooges to spout the same old crap the entire world is sick and tired of hearing, the world wants results not delusional bulldust from corporate-serving US stooges and puppet presidents -- refer to Youtube to view Obama's thoroughly divorced from reality address to the UN GA. And America is the nation that imagines it has all the answers and is a model the entire world should emulate -- fortunately the majority of world leaders see reason, otherwise the entire planet would have been plunged into total, irreversible chaos.

I need not continue as the stark reality of events unfolds as I write; the only hope of stability in the Middle East, is not coming from Kerry, who is incapable of establishing and negotiating peace anywhere, however, he continues to provide material support to 'moderate' terrorists on the ground, an idiocy beyond rational comprehension, notwithstanding the screaming double standard and white hot hypocrisy, but that is exactly what Kerry/Washington are doing.

So, what would any rational person envisage as the logical outcome for the USA, put starkly self-inflicted ruin and ostracisation -- a very knowledgeable and astute political science lecturer once stated in my university days, "America will become its own worst enemy," I hope he's alive today to see his prophecy come horribly true.

If the US population fails to intervene (an unlikely prospect) and rid the Republic of the destructive elements that have infected the nation then his next prophecy would ultimately also become reality, and its simply too obvious to recount here; so American readers, let's see if you are able to add 2+2 and arrive at 7 -- sorry, that's Washington mathematics; however, I'm sure that any reader is able to do a better job than any Washington buffoon today, and I do not wish to make a disparaging comparison on any reader.

American credibility today is in the minuses, all thanks to a paralysed and media lobotomised population. Well, good luck to the world's most populated nation of dunces and delusional COWARDS.

---

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-1945.html>