

Where is China, Traditionally Perceived as a Nation of Slaves and Cowards by the West?

by jack Monday, Nov 16 2015, 12:02am

international / prose / post

Okay Mr Xi, NATO now has the excuse (Paris attack) it required to stop refugees pouring into Europe and to intervene in Syria and Iraq against ally Russia, make no mistake; simply read the words of puppet president Hollande and other allied leaders who appear to be singing in a conducted choir if you wish to understand the machinations behind the scenes, though I know you are aware of the plan as indeed is Putin.

Xi Jinping

I have read and re-read, too many times, Sun tzu, Lao tzu and the Kwang zi in Mandarin and understand the allusion and Chinese metaphor better than most Chinese, so don't give me that crap about let all the round eyes fight it out and we'll just walk in, clean up and take over, it won't happen, YOU will be attacked as an adversary whether you act or not, Chinese leaders take for granted that western leaders are competent and sane - big mistake, simply review recent history over the past 15 years for verification.

So what will you do now Mr Xi? Your timid threats in the South China Sea have been shoved back down your yellow, cowardly throat by US naval vessels and Air force planes deliberately breaching your sovereign space, so it seems true that Chinese are nothing but yellow cowardly dogs, as they are perceived to be in Washington.

You're not 'ready' you say to take on the US, however, war is not a coherent managed game, victory is awarded to those best able to exploit an opportunity and those fastest on their feet to take decisive action; I understand that 'passive water' conquers all in time but time is something you do not have (US pre-emptive attacks) and so it becomes necessary to utilise the 'space' and not the 'form' and utilisation means ACTION.

If NATO nations intervene against Russia in Syria and Iraq you would be well advised to support your ally, as even now your combined strength assures you victory though at great cost, but wars are a dirty business, Mr Xi! Make your move if NATO threatens your ally Russia, which is doing a superb job blowing the entire US/NATO charade wide open.

Superpowers are just that because of their involvement in global affairs, or will you take another American turd in your face when they breach your sovereign land, sea and air space again?

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-1980.html>