

One Constant of War - the People are Always Losers

by jude Sunday, Nov 29 2015, 10:22am

international / prose / post

Indeed, few could argue against the obvious reality stated in the title and for those that know all too well – leaders of warring nations -- they prefer to ignore the price civilians pay in their megalomaniacal dreams of conquest. Do US leaders consider civilian death tolls in their insane bid for world domination as outlined in their ‘Project for the New American Century,’ which touts ‘Pax Americana’ and ‘Full Spectrum Dominance,’ document, which is clearly reminiscent of the ‘Thousand Year Reich’ of a previous mass murdering megalomaniac.

Have no doubt that civilian populations pay through their noses for not removing obviously psychopathic leaders from office – and make no mistake, leaders know too well, that it is the people they should fear most and so another reason people are treated as expendable by minority elites, which I would add, are terrified at the prospect that the people may one day, say enough is enough and actually DO SOMETHING about it.

The illegal war on Iraq accounted for over 1 million civilian deaths and 5-6 million displaced persons; statistics for the Libyan fiasco are suppressed, not that allied aggressors were counting, but 26,000 NATO air sorties in a ‘no-fly zone’ [LOL] accounted for at least hundreds of thousands of civilian deaths and many more displaced and of course since the US/NATO destabilisation of that once prosperous and stable North African nation, many thousands more have been killed and displaced by factional forces vying for control of the nation, and as one commentator put it in reference to Syria, none of the warring parties are strong enough to win but not weak enough to lose so the mayhem continues even as I write.

And so to the toll in Syria, the latest theatre of America’s quest for its insane hegemonic dream, which is shared by all megalomaniacs and psychopaths. Syria’s civilian death toll stands at over 250,000 and 11 million displaced civilians which have now overflowed into Europe – not a bad effort in psychopathic terms for a handful of leaders pursuing their personal psycho-pathologies. Yet billions of civilians remain tolerant of their leaders and endure the circumstances that elite minorities have inflicted on them – now ask yourself, which group is more insane those minorities pursuing their pathologies or the masses that pay the price, clearly the answer is the masses, and of course one could say the people deserve their leaders, which are concentrated focal points of the national mind.

Now, it is known that two methods galvanise the masses into action, SHOCK – the preferred choice of elites – and benign unifying social movements usually led by charismatic religious or social reformers. We can forget the latter as today’s cultures clearly indicate many reasons why, so we are left with shock in the form of nuclear war which of course the masses are begging for as it is unfolding under their very noses, without the slightest murmurings of discontent. So for numerous reasons, expect the expected WAR on a large scale.

I’m sorry I was not able to deliver a more optimistic message but reality demands the truth, and if you have an aversion to truth and reality, simply refer to the mass media for your escape – it is the elite owned mass media that ensures the masses are distracted from the REALITY that it is a handful of psychopaths that are THE REAL ENEMY of people everywhere.

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-2004.html>