

The Apple of His Eye ...

by nano Wednesday, Dec 9 2015, 7:27am

international / prose / post

It has recently been revealed that Russia discussed declaring war on Turkey after the SU-24 incident, that action would have been an entirely legal and appropriate response given the circumstances of the pre-planned attack on Russia, and would also have flushed NATO/US cockroaches from the woodwork, but alas, Putin's well known hesitancy and cowardice prevailed.

Vladimouse Putin

Russia's PM Dimitry Medvedev stated that a "symmetrical response" could have started a major war citing 20th century examples, what a laugh, as both Medvedev and Putin fail to realise that the "war" has already begun; note the immediate NATO/Turkish response to Putin's timid reaction, invade Iraq, which nation's government recently allied itself to Russia. And to add further aggravation or fuel to the war fire, NATO then invites Montenegro (a traditional Slav ally) to join its ranks, which was an intentional strategy designed to demonstrate to hesitant European nations that Putin is a coward and weak and not to worry about joining Washington's manic push for an all-out confrontation with Russia. Well, Mr Putin, it seems you have proven Washington right and now NATO is mobilising against you in Syria and elsewhere, great work. you mouse!

What most professional analysts are asking themselves at this stage is what would it take before the penny drops, perhaps a pre-emptive nuclear strike on Russia may do the trick? Something Washington is desperate to achieve but is stalled by European NATO allies averse to inviting nuclear destruction on the western world. However, America, an adolescent nation, imagines it could prevail in a nuclear war with other superpowers.

Now, if Washington is able to convince or dupe major European lackey powers, which it needs desperately to conduct an effective strike on Russia, then MAJOR war is INEVITABLE, you stupid Russian dunce. If you were truly concerned about protecting the Russian and world population, you would have notified western powers before striking Turkey immediately after that advice and left them (NATO) to stew over whether or not to retaliate over a justified and legal response, you dumb fuck!

However, you have lost that opportunity and now you have only made matters worse for yourself.

Now, readers may be wondering what relevance the title has to all this, well, feasible options continue to be available to Russia. I would hearken back to the assassination of JFK and the subsequent marriage of his widow to Aristotle Onassis, a very wealthy, powerful and influential shipping magnate. This was a marriage of necessity as Jackie was aware of all the intrigues surrounding her husband's death and required protection and a safe haven from 'deep state' killers, which had ended her husband's life and now threatened her and her children.

Now I would highlight the CIA strategy to break Onassis and keep him in line, and that was to demonstrate, by murdering his only son, how easily they could at any time deliver more trouble if he assisted Jackie in exposing the deep state's involvement in her husband's assassination. The subsequent inquiry into young Onassis' death in a plane crash which he piloted and owned, revealed that the controls of the aircraft had 'somehow' been reversed, no accident I can assure you. So, Mr Putin, it seems, if you are smart enough and able to grasp the allusion, you would be able to regain some balance in your WAR (make no mistake) against the western alliance. The WORLD must become AWARE that you MEAN BUSINESS and a few missiles launched from one of your submarines clearly does not carry enough IMPACT, you cowardly clown!

Another interesting point mentioned in the Mirror article was that immediately after the illegal, pre-planned Turkish strike on the Russian SU-24, known US lackey David Cameron, engaged in talks with Putin to defuse the situation while America continued to provoke via Turkey and NATO, and YOU, Mr 'genius strategist' Putin, fell for the stalling tactic; I have a great deal to offer you on the Sydney Harbour bridge, you clown! If you really desire sound advice, Mr Putin, ask your military before they dispatch you!

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-2019.html>