

The Domino Effect of Falling Gulf State Monarchs Heads

You really have to laugh over the predicament the House of Saud has got itself into due to its gullibility and acquiescence to Washington. The US ordered a deflation of oil prices which was designed to break the Russian economy, however, it has backfired as the impact has devastated the House of Saud, which finances are now flowing more freely into desert sands than the blood of innocent civilians Saudi supported Wahhabi terrorists spill in the region, though it is no historical secret that the House of Saud has been a long time puppet of western imperial power, now centralised in Washington.

However, the geniuses in Washington may have just placed the drowning stone around the criminal neck of the Saudi monarchy and other Gulf State monarchies by ordering the execution of Shia cleric, al-Nimr, which 'strategy' was hoped to distract from the recent exposure by Russia of the complicity of the US/Israel/Turkey/NATO's direct involvement, and support of all the terror and regime change wars in the region and the facilitation of ISIL stolen oil from Syria and Iraq, which sovereign State governments are presently considering legal action against these interfering criminal interests for the financial losses they have suffered, easily proven. How embarrassing for this now EXPOSED imperial criminal group of thieving murderers. What to do? 'We know,' say the neocons, set the region on fire with a Sunni-Shia sectarian war so we are then able to intervene and 'stabilise' the region, which this same group has been destabilising for the past 15 years with a horrendous loss of innocent lives, but the key factor is to utilise the compliant and suicidal services of the inbred House of Saud.

The known (for decades) plan of course is to redraw maps of the Middle East and install compliant puppet regimes a la Kosovo style under the 'protection' (control) of western imperial forces. Well, the US is nothing if not consistent with its foreign policy stupidities and ill-advised plans, the sectarian conflict imperial interests hoped for has failed, don't you people have any cultural analysts in your employ, Persia/Iran, has been around for thousands of years as an imperial power and knows a thing or two about simplistic tactics, while the infantile delinquent USA knows shit as it always resorts to simplistic, TRANSPARENT tactics and RUSTIC brute force, which serve only to attract the hate of the world and destabilise its own economy, now ready to implode - the toilet-paper dollar is becoming exactly that? It's a wonder neocons are not lined up and used for military target practice, as their group think has always resulted in damage to the US in one form or another.

Now to track record solutions which the infantile USA is addicted to; consider the fact that Gulf State monarchies are despised by their own populations and have strong police and militaries to ensure their safety; well yes, but these militaries also have many western controlled ambitious generals in their ranks, it would be a simple matter for western imperial forces to install compliant military dictatorships using the overthrow of despised GSMs to both distract and satisfy the people, which would no doubt be jubilant and overjoyed to see their much hated rulers beheaded, though monarchical rule would be replaced with military dictatorships, but who would notice in the frenzy of revolt and the intoxicating joy of the people until it's too late?

Indeed, one wonders whether or not this Machiavellian strategy is the intention, but I doubt it, as the USA and its stooges have no idea, plain to see - so WWII it is -- another stroke of neocon

'genius.' The point is not lost on Russia, China and Iran, which are all engaging in preparations for the inevitable.
