

Oz PM Turnbull in Washington - just another knee-walking Canberra Politician

by mitch Wednesday, Jan 20 2016, 9:04am

international / prose / post

Turnbull proves himself to be just another vacuous errand boy

It seems that whenever an Australian leader is beckoned to Washington knee-pads become essential accoutrements. Oz PM Malcolm 'un-exciting' Turnbull has been called to Washington along with other western lackey leaders to be briefed by the US ruling elite on the course they are obliged to take as obedient vassal States, of course the agenda is full of the usual criminal activity Washington is noted for, more illegal resource and regime change wars and other orders to participate in American crimes abroad.

You got it, punk?

Now, in his own idiotic statements to the WORLD's media, Turnbull emphatically stated that it's the "values we share with the US" that maintains our bonds and more diatribes along those lines. Well, "VALUES" ay! Does Oz share the "values" of secret 'kill lists,' or 'extra-judicial murders?' Not likely, or how about legalised torture and rendition to secret locations where the 'shared values' of torture and horrid abuse is par for the course for those unfortunates held in 'indefinite detention' without a court conviction of an offence. Turnbull, a lawyer by profession, could hardly excuse himself for subscribing to these shared values and participating in grossly illegal wars? So what are average Aussies to think?

Yep, Turnbull is simply another grovelling Australian politician faced with kowtowing to Washington regardless of which puppet president occupies the White House; and as Turnbull himself stated when asked a question on which presidential candidate Australia would prefer to work with (serve), he responded "I'm sure Australia would be able to work with (serve) whoever the American people (banker and corporate elite) choose as their new president" -- no doubt!

The fact that Oz is a major ally in the grossly illegal Syrian bombing campaign does not seem to bother Turnbull whose 'exciting' bullshit will soon be confronted with grim economic and criminal reality.

However, let's not be too harsh on Turnbull who had a chance to assert Australia's independence and sovereignty and remove US troops of occupation from our shores, as almost every PM before him and a host of foreign ministers compete to see who can return to Oz with the most custard on their face.

After his pathetic performance on the international stage Turnbull will be straining to get back home and force a DD election before the population wakes up to the spineless, shallow, subservient puppet he REALLY is! We recommend that Turnbull and other lackey Canberra politicians become aware of AUSTRALIAN TRADITIONAL VALUES before making thorough arses of themselves on the world stage.

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-2079.html>