The US and its criminal ally NATO 'Su-24' Turkey, have created a 'humanitarian crisis' on the border of Syria-Turkey in order to create a pretext and justify an illegal land invasion.

Mad neo-Sultan Erdogan

Turkey closed its borders to refugees fleeing from Aleppo, while maintaining the flow of weapons, supplies and jihadi fighters through its border into Syria. So the ruse becomes obvious, notwithstanding, the grossly illegal support of extremist mercenary fighters.

Clearly, Turkey, the PROVEN major recipient of stolen ISIL oil over the past years and a known ally and supporter of all the various extremist anti-Assad groups in Syria, should be held to account for the deaths, destruction and prolongation of the Syrian conflict, but of course MAJOR backers the US/NATO overlook these criminal activities and allow Erdogan and his Saudi accomplices to wreak havoc on Syria in a vain attempt to force 'regime change,' another criminal act in which the US is clearly the leading international offender.

We should already be aware, after the allied (criminal) bombing of Libya and its subsequent reduction to a failed State that the 'humanitarian crisis' pretext and the R2P is a tired and known western strategy, as it's simple to create havoc, destabilise a nation and force people to flee their homes. However, closing (Turkey) once open escape routes puts an entirely different, CONTRIVED angle on the situation; how is it possible that Turkey closes its borders to fleeing refugees and keeps them open for jihadi fighters and their supply routes? Logic and reason dictate that it should be the other way around, but Turkey and Saudi Arabia are both led by desperate and unstable megalomaniacs at this time who make no attempt to hide the fact they both support extremist jihadi fighters that are causing mayhem in Syria and other parts of the Middle East and North Africa.

We have even heard the same (Libya) "buffer" or 'no-fly zone' demands by Turkey/Saudi bandits in order to protect their fighters and mitigate a Syrian-Russian advance on the border region, which has been temporarily delayed by 'peace' talks in Geneva; surely the Russians should have learned by now that it's all a ruse?

The last time this NOW transparent tactic was allowed to run a prosperous stable North African nation was ruined, its leader murdered by proxy fighters (the fledgling ISIL) and the nation was allowed to descend into anarchy -- so much for spreading democracy and protecting people! Russian officials/cowards know all this too well!

However, Turkey, Saudi and Qatar allies are aware they are toast if they provoke Russia without NATO/US support so they are forcing the issue and applying ENORMOUS pressure on Washington/Brussels to intervene, which both are loath to do but have nevertheless created pretexts and propaganda for such an event.

It remains to be seen whether or not Western Europe and America wish to be reduced to ashes, as any escalation would force a full nuclear exchange as Russia is unable to sustain a long conventional war against another superpower, a fact known by Washington war hawks and analysts.

So it reduces to vaporisation-ashes or capitulation by Turkey and its Gulf State allies, which they would never do voluntarily. So it's not Russia faced with a dilemma, as it would wipe its rear with Turkey and its allies, a given; the pressure at this stage is ALL on Brussels/Washington and if they're not careful they may be forced into a suicidal conflict of their own making. How very sweet it is! Though I do not disregard the fact that the entire world is presently sitting on a powder keg, thanks to the neocon manic/LUNATIC desire for "Full Spectrum Dominance."

The safest and most practical solution at this stage is regime change in Turkey and Saudi Arabia, options Washington think tanks are seriously considering as I write.
