

Hanson's One Nation party, now force in Senate -- Political Dunces Malcolm Turnbull does it YET AGAIN

by jaxie Thursday, Aug 4 2016, 1:56am

international / prose / post

Turnbull could have called a standard election any time he chose after becoming leader of his party -- he should have capitalised on his unfounded media popularity when he had it. However, Turnbull imagined he was unbeatable, as he believed the baseless media hype himself, silly fool! So he called a Double Dissolution election in order to clean out the Senate of what he thought were obstructionists. Well, now, far-right bigots have gained four Senate seats; though they do not possess the balance of power, the Greens maintain that position, it is a disastrous outcome. Four Senate seats are now held by myopic, parochial, avowed racists and political dunces, which creates a Senate more difficult than before Turnbull's 'genius' DD election. Sure, he will claim it was a 'cabinet decision,' hoping to evade responsibility and duck for cover, however, Turnbull is 'leader' and takes FULL responsibility for the fiasco the nation and sane parliamentarians NOW face.

Well done again, Mr 'disconnected, narcissist and political fool,' Turnbull, few would have taken the obvious risk; you have made your bed and no doubt the nation and your party will be rid of you as soon as possible. I mean really, Turnbull, since he took leadership has proven he couldn't lead a gaggle of geese let alone a nation in deep financial crisis and in desperate need of skilled financial and political management.

Hopefully, average Aussies that haven't woken to the uselessness of major unrepresentative parties, should now wake to the horrid, chaotic reality that is ready to plague the nation.

<http://tinyurl.com/hf6bcmw>

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-2318.html>