

Prime Minister USELESS, Malcolm Turnbull

by darcy Sunday, Oct 2 2016, 10:20pm

international / prose / post

It was obvious from the start, Turnbull is incapable of leading the nation, moreover, he has perpetually failed to lead his party, even the drover's dog is aware that certain extreme, unrepresentative factions in his party lead him -- a fine state of affairs for a national 'leader.'

Recent polls have spelled it out, Turnbull is losing the people not only in cities but now in the bush, so it's all over for the Libs; clearly, they have learned nothing from Labor's recent internal calamities. Leaders that fail to lead are dead in water, notwithstanding that Turnbull, by allowing unrepresentative conservative factions to lord over him, has made an advertisement of his lack of guts, will and ability.

Take for example the recent power outage in South Australia, consultant driven Turnbull attempted to politicise the event and gain traction, he failed miserably as Aussies are aware that the catastrophe in SA was directly attributable to a climate change generated intense storm event, which supports the view and actions of various States to withdraw from polluting methods of generating electricity. However, spineless Turnbull is clearly at the mercy of his idiot, US-trained advisers so he played the political distraction game and made a thorough fool of himself yet again -- lead or die, you useless, politically impotent, clown!

The party requires drastic change from within before it could hope to become a functional government, and the first step is to eliminate the issue of gay marriage and the subversive elements that oppose it. This issue is the flea on the tail of a dog wagging the dog -- the vast majority of Aussies want REAL action with issues that affect their lives, forget the flea minorities and DO something for the masses or suffer the consequences.

The overwhelming majority couldn't give a shit about a tiny minority marrying -- wake up Turnbull or remain enslaved to a bunch of 'looney tune' idiot consultants and extreme elements in your party -- in other words, clean them out and then get on with the real job, which in case you have forgotten, is leading the nation. Either make your mark or fuck off Mr Turnbull, continued inaction would force the people to make decisions for you!

DO or DIE, it's as simple as that!

