

Russian Bear Finally Emerges from Hibernation

by drew Saturday, Oct 15 2016, 3:03pm

international / prose / post

What did that vacillating, indecisive coward Putin think when the USA installed offensive missile systems in close proximity to Russia's land borders? The excuse given at the time by demented US president dubya Bush was that these 'defensive' missile systems were to protect Europe from Iranian missile attacks, notwithstanding that Iran has never possessed that capability nor does it today. But Putin deferred to unreason and did not immediately react and demand that these offensive systems be removed. That was a very sorry day for the world as the US was allowed to pursue its maniacal dream of world domination UNIMPEDED. There have been many more outrageous incidents and international crimes committed by a confident US/NATO since, I refer to the Libyan and Syrian catastrophes and the destabilisation of North Africa and the Middle East.

Putin watched PASSIVELY again as Yugoslavia, Iraq and Libya were devastated and dismantled by the criminal USA and its servile NATO allies. But still no action from Russia to save its blood European ally and other sovereign States. So what did Putin imagine the consequences would be? Rabid neocon Paul Wolfowitz, who should be standing in the dock for war and other crimes against humanity, made it plain, to paraphrase, 'we have learned [from the Yugoslav and Iraq interventions] that Russia will not react to American military advances!'

After that outrageous but accurate statement Putin should have been placed before a firing squad; the situation, which Putin alone allowed to escalate, has today reached critical mass -- the WORLD now faces a thermonuclear conflict between superpowers. All thanks to Putin's hesitancy and cowardice. Has anyone in Russia heard the expression, "nip it in the bud?" Meaning of course, a direct mitigating action applied early prevents a major problem in the future, a future which is TODAY, as the world teeters on the brink of a nuclear war between the insane USA and cowardly, nuclear Russia! It is worth mentioning that Washington, the Pentagon and CIA believe Russia would acquiesce before committing itself to such a war, which are dreamworld assumptions/delusions, as monumentally stupid America has provoked both Russia AND China, effectively opening two major fronts against it by extremely powerful nations. Well done neocon nut cases.

However, Russia and its military have finally realised what anyone could have told them when Bush first installed missile systems on Russia's land borders. Were the Americans preparing for a picnic or new year celebrations? NOT LIKELY, these were OFFENSIVE military installations to gain the upper hand for the eventual taming of Russia. Putin failed in his FIRST DUTY as a national leader, TO PROTECT HIS NATION AND PEOPLE from any external aggression, you miserable coward, Mr V. Putin.

Now look at what Russia is forced to deal with TODAY! America's real intentions were made clear when the USA destroyed Yugoslavia, Iraq, Afghanistan and Libya, the Syrian assistance is far too late as now the USA is hell bent, not that its real intentions were ever hidden from plain view -- no excuses Mr Putin, you cannot deal with lunatics, something which you have finally learned, but far too late I would add. So maybe the lunatics in Washington are right, Russia would rather capitulate to naked aggression and slavery than fight for its life/freedom, though that fight, which Putin alone allowed to reach critical mass, may destroy Russia. So they had your measure from the start, didn't they, you chicken-shit, Mr Putin? It's all your fault for not acting decisively when it was NECESSARY!

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-2376.html>