if i could speak to u in a language that all understand without uttering a word surely that language would be universal, not a product of any particular earth culture if that language issued from one 'word'/logos in which an infinite lexicon of expressions resided it would truly be divine -- as the true God of creation must necessarily 'speak' such a language that the infinite creatures of creation understand

yet, the so-called sacred and holy texts of the earth are written in culture specific languages that other cultures do not understand so, would the God of infinite creation that speaks to all beings at once be the originator of those texts? clearly not.

the sacred and holy texts of the earth are compendiums of lies written by men to serve their own interests, plain to see, as the true God does not discriminate or exclude -- all creation is beloved of the one TRUE God if we as beings are created by an all-knowing loving God then clearly we are able to 'speak' and understand that language, which is the case the divine language resides in the one and many simultaneously, as previously mentioned, do you understand it?

all creation is of that language, expressed as the uttered and un-uttered; uttered in the sense of what is known to all the senses and un-uttered in the sense that we already know that one principle in which All is contained.

on this earth the language understood by all is known as LOVE, every creature is aware, yet it only intimates its true meaning as culturally bound beings are limited and true Love is limitless, are we beginning to understand?

we express it and understand it without the need of words, written or spoken how great is the power of LOVE? and how great is the God of creation that manifests that Love as ALL creation? herein is Truth to the extent that it is able to be encoded by limited language learn to Love without exception so you are able to become one with God/Love/Creation

the true language is sweet and in it is life, joy and peace everlasting, as distinct from all the murderous, destructive VIOLENCE born of the false gods of culture-specific false religions surely u are now able to comprehend -- understanding, being Love opens the door to infinity and all knowledge
