

Watch the Greater American Plan for the Middle East Crumble

by jack Thursday, Jan 5 2017, 12:36am

international / prose / post

America's loss in Syria, a nation if captured, would have provided a leverage to launch attacks on Persia/IRAN, which to this day has resisted ALL attempts by the US to divide and conquer it. Indeed, Shia Iran has only increased in strength and influence in the region, which I would largely attribute to America's manic desire to dominate by allying itself to the wrong nations rather than cooperate with all nations in the region, as China, for example, successfully does much to its credit.

The gung-ho 'exceptional,' infantile attitude (based on nothing but self-deception) of the USA was sure to bring it undone as is happening now as I write. The imbecilic first use of brute force to solve internal problems has never worked, and has no chance if applied in the international arena -- any mature Asian or European nation could have told adolescent America it would fail using deceptive and violent gangster tactics, as all the above nations have been through that mill hundreds, even thousands of years past.

Orchestrated wars are not a solution they are clearly the big problem for millions of innocent human beings, notwithstanding they are grossly illegal and listed as such in every legal jurisdiction in the entire world. So America stands to lose everything if it fails in the Middle East and no amount of brute force military power is able to prevail against the majority of nations opposed to a criminal mafia state, yes, you, America!

Add to this nightmarish scenario the self-styled Sultan of Turkey, who has already attempted to involve NATO and the USA in a hot war with Russia, so much for sanity in the region. The situation is out of control as various Gulf States which have been forced by America to drop their oil price, so as to bankrupt Russia -- another failed stragey I would add -- now face huge internal strife as the artificially lowered price has impacted more on their nations than it has on Russia, but the USA refuses to allow the Saudi and other Royal families in the region to increase oil prices substantially, such is the fear Arabic Royals have for their future safe havens that they continue to subvert their own nations rather than ensure the stability of their respective nations. Indeed, not every Gulf State Royal will find safe haven in the UK and USA, but keep 'em guessing and terrified NATO/America, they are the scum of the earth anyway. Nevertheless, civic unrest could erupt instantaneously into revolution as the Sunni population already smolders.

But to return to Iran, the arch enemy of divided warring sunni nations, particularly Wahhabi Saudi Arabia, the closest ally America has in the region, which is also responsible for supporting all the various jihadi groups in the region, particularly ISIL, which specialise in killing fellow Muslims -- Saudi royals will pay a very high price for their treachery in allying themselves to a failed criminal Christian State in the VERY near future, notwithstanding that most of Saudi oil reserves are in Shia dominated areas, which Iran is fully cognisant of. Do you see the future unfolding?

It's not only Saudi that is terrified of Iran, most Gulf States are petrified of same as they are aware that Persia/Iran would be able to exploit their idiotic weakness of killing and warring with each other, which reduces to Sunni killing Sunni. Saudi prince Bandar, stated plainly to Putin, which moronic outburst made the British press, that the Saudis control the 'terrorists' and turn them on and off like a light switch, he also stated that they are expendable, and would be eliminated once their usefulness expired -- how does it feel you inbred, moronic jihadi suckers?

After the consolidation of Syria by Assad, Russia, Iran and China, the American house of cards will collapse in the Middle East and most of the Gulf States that openly support the USA will be devastated internally and externally, you can back it in. Various royal families in the region are ready to evacuate to America and the UK in minutes, little wonder, and might I add, some of whom speak better English than they do Arabic, the King of Jordan for instance, who supplies bases for CIA trained jihadists doesn't take a piss without ringing Washington first.

If you imagine the Middle East is a tragedy today wait till the entire house of cards collapses, and most Gulf royals are strung up by their balls after decapitation of course. And of course America must take the blame, which occurrence would also expose it as the most heinous criminal nation in the WORLD. Adages often state, 'if the people knew what their rulers were doing in secret they would string them up,' allow me now to state that all these adages and anecdotes are understatement, it will be much worse. And the trouble will reach America and its European allies soon after the Middle East house of cards collapses. Rulership by deception sure ain't what it used to be.

The above is a summary of future events unsupported by detailed evidence even though that evidence exists, my excuse is this site survives on less than the smell of an 'oil' rag, so I wait for others known for their specialisation in this area/field to expand and present professional pieces to the public. They know what is stated above is accurate though unsupported.

Meanwhile Russia, Iran and China are sitting pretty, quick, better launch before its too late America!

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-2475.html>