

Their Man in Office

by baz Tuesday, Jan 31 2017, 11:31pm

international / prose / post

In a lost nation of sheep, the few that think and are aware of the appalling reality, lament the current situation. However, some cling to hope, remember 'HOPE' from Obama's campaign? Hope is a word devoid of substance its principal usage is in theology -- where there is no proof or substance, refer to hope -- a preposterous dream as it paralyses social ACTION and self-determination. So we have a hope plague today, the desperate and deluded imagine that candidates that run for president are somehow representatives of the people or independent, now note REALITY, Trump is a born elitist and remains one through and through.

The last truly independent contender for president was JFK, who was propelled into the presidency by his charismatic appeal AND his father's ill-gotten, during prohibition, filthy money. But what's the use of money if it doesn't translate into power and so Kennedy became president. However, he was not of the establishment, which earned him his death by assassination.

Since Kennedy, the elite criminal establishment has not allowed any contender to vie for the presidency that was not of their ilk or willing to serve their interests without question (Obama), now ask yourself, is Trump a people's president? In your deluded dreams. Both Trump and Clinton as contenders were in alignment with elite interests, the principal of those being WAR, which fills the coffers of a national war economy. Secondly, perpetual conflict and confrontation serves to eliminate opponents, locally and globally, the main three nations that do not kowtow to the USA are China, Russia and Iran and of course Syria, which is presently under attack and Iran is next.

Social considerations amount to just enough crumbs on the table, 'bread and circuses' and of course a constant stream of propagandist telling everyone that everything is just fine or making excuses for failures by accusing the other or targeted enemy. All of which behaviours are searingly evident today.

Now, elite interests are not served by PEACE and prosperity, they are served by DIVISION, conflict, war and the widespread hardship those forces create. Now ask yourself, do Trump's policies and executive orders unite or divide the masses, a rhetorical question as Trump is the most divisive president ever elected. So who wins, as division results in conflict, the elite of course, plain to see?

Scapegoats are created, demonised and targeted (Muslims) so that focus is never allowed to fall on the real causes of worldwide mayhem, violence, murder and destruction, though these calamities are profitable for the elite few and a nation that is completely geared for conflict and war. Retired general Wesley Clark once stated that, 'if you only have a hammer every problem becomes a nail.' So presidents today MUST align with the elite agenda or they never make it to office as they once did, and create assassination problems, everyone learns especially the elite, which group have also completely harnessed the mass media.

Anyone that believes that any president today would not serve elite interests is sorely deluded, especially in view of the facts -- Trump's antagonising, disruptive, chaos-engendering policies and actions. Trump is actually the elite's wet dream. He will foment a major war in no time, probably faster than Hillary would have. You do not believe, well, proof will be forthcoming in no time. REALITY is always stark, if you have the eyes to see and the mind to evaluate. Note, there is no mystery to Orwell's predictions, he simply assessed the forces operating in his time and projected the results into the future, the same applies today.

Now a reminder and possibly an option or way out; a recent article, indicates much -- "Our nation of sheep has given rise to a government of wolves." Need I add to that stark REALITY? Well yes, reality is what YOU make it and if you do nothing others will do all the 'doing' for you, of course serving their interests only all the while. Fair dinkum, if a society is not worth pissing on then someone would soon come along and shit on it. How does it feel, Amerika?

---

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-2518.html>