

Roll

by rayn Thursday, Feb 9 2017, 1:10am international / poetry / post roll back on my pillow allow me to swoon over the sight of ur contoured cheeks, graceful neck and exposed breasts, so natural and captivating in sleep i dare not wake u and spoil this wonder sleeping next to me, how completely exquisite a picture u make in repose i recall when first we crossed paths it was the presence created by our encounter, a third force which overwhelmed us both, neither of us attributed this phenomenal attraction to that force at the time, it was the result of our meeting -- ecstatically explosive, all petty cultural restraints were left and remain by the wayside how many lives past were we together so familiar was/is your presence and mine to you that the awkward verbal attempts to arrange a meet were ignored in favour of re-engagement, something surely was left undone or interrupted in order for us to meet again?

i can scarcely believe this perverse world would allow such perfect Love to endure -- gone are the fighting relatives and hired professionals all feebly attempting to tear us apart for their own sick reasons; as if they could fathom our profound bond today jealousy perhaps, perfect love creates spite in others and drives them to destroy what they cannot have or have never experienced yet they know when they see it and burn with envy, rage and spite let them fry in the poison juices of their own discord, hate and envy. we are stronger now, like a giant living tree whose branches extend to infinity is our bond, which easily holds universes together.

i am in total awe of you, roll back on my pillow and deliver me to the gates of paradise where only the gods dwell somehow u sense my conscious presence and slowly turn, ur waking eyes greet mine in perfect affinity; an ineffable peace/joy overtakes what is left of personal identity, u smile in recognition shaming all the gods ever created and i die a million deaths to be reborn every second in ur other-worldly presence how much sheer joy and ecstatic Love is a human able to bear before exploding in blissful convulsions into another realm?

we come to the simultaneous realisation of why we never met earlier, neither of us would have been able to cope with the overwhelming power of selfless Love and complete Sacrifice so i write this poem for you only, my one true Love.

---

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-2531.html>