

What's 'New' in the News?

by sadh Thursday, Apr 27 2017, 1:02am

international / prose / post

Well, nothing; it's the same old lies and stories of war, injustice, demonising minorities sectarian conflicts all distributed courtesy of those that profit from same.

I was taught at university that the dominant culture controls the cultural narrative, or as it was called then the 'dominant discourse;' however, clearly that is not the case as dominant culture is controlled by tiny self-interested minorities that have seized control of information/media systems.

Yet if history is our judge and reference, we would remember, that "there is nothing new under the sun," indeed there isn't regarding human nature. How is it that thousands of years past someone could pen those very accurate words about the society in which they lived, and clearly NOTHING has changed today thousands of years later?

So what are we dealing with here, a social sickness that endures for thousands of years, what type of social pathology is this? Of course the answer is obvious, the HUMAN CONDITION, which never seems to vary -- a tragic circumstance needless to say.

What is capitalism but human greed/avarice manifested as an ideology to be worshiped by the masses and worshiped it is; not long ago stamped on US coins was the statement "In God we Trust," which seems reasonable/innocuous BUT for the fact that it is stamped on money, money of course taking on the Status of God, though subliminally. Now ask yourself on what pursuit do you spend most of your time? Yes indeed, the human species could be described as a very sorry species as there is nothing new under its sun.

Is there hope for change, well yes and no, not in this perverse age or cycle, it must enter its entropic period and self-destruct before what's left of humanity is able to really change. Today's populations are somnambulists, plain to see. And they must be woken before change is possible and what awakens an entire world but a world calamity of monumental proportions, yes you have it, nuclear war and catastrophic environmental change, which is being manically pursued as I write.

So prepare for the inevitable, and know that this future was not written in stone it was written in the unchanging nature of the human condition; almost all ideologies and belief systems reflect nothing more than this perversity. And so it is a simple matter to be prophetic as nothing issues from a vacuum, all one need do is read reality and face it, a difficult task for sleepwalkers.

However, as a poet, intuitive and mystic I am able to assure the aware few that a new cycle approaches but not before the old self-destructs.

Now I'm nothing special, anyone that wishes to SEE is able to by choice, though few are willing to persevere today. You see, all of us were alive before we were born and will endure after we have 'died' or more accurately, transitioned, what the creative principle creates of its own essential nature cannot be destroyed. And so mystics and intuitives are immortal as they remain aware through these transitions, however the same cannot be said for those that fear, they die horrible, excruciating deaths as they know not of LIFE and perfect harmony. Yes, even the apparent mess that appears before us today is perfect in the grand orchestra of things universal, as this reality forces us all to realise sanity, peace/harmony and life eternal without the baggage of religious/temporal ideologies, or in two words, without lies and perversity.

So fare thee well my fellow human beings, the door to knowledge and life is always open but you must enter of your own accord.

---

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-2630.html>