

O, What Tangled 'Algorithms' We Weave, Google!

by luce Monday, Dec 3 2012, 12:23am

international / prose / post

After a scathing attack on Google chairperson, Eric 'sweetie' Schmidt, regarding not listing the previous three words in general searches, we note they have returned to listings but only for this new site, Jungle Drum! You will no doubt be very troubled to learn that the three words in question first appeared (on numerous occasions) on our sister site, Cleaves Newswire, which has a continuing Internet presence of seven years plus, YET it failed to appear in Google search listings, which PROVES beyond any doubt that data juggernaut Google intentionally censors, backgrounds and improperly 'manages' data/sites in its searches!

Sorry Eric, but you are clearly not up to the task, are you, 'sweetie?' No algorithm is smart enough to cover all your improprieties and unfair business practices.

Again, we remind you that we are the digital elite and exposing your unfair searches is child's play, the evidence is overwhelming and extremely incriminating - the door to litigation is wide open and we have indirectly offered our consultancy services to the industry. We hope that this exercise sends a clear message to other lame 'Big Brother' censors - learn, you're just not quite up to it!

[Lawyers are salivating as I write, Eric, darling!]

Eric Schmidt