

Which Nations are Enforcing International LAW?

by james Friday, Jul 14 2017, 12:38am

international / prose / post

The short accurate answer is NONE. How so? Russia/Putin abandoned both Yugoslavia and Libya, feeding both allied nations to NATO/US criminal dogs. China lost over $30 billion in Libya when it retreated, with 'yellow' tail between legs, from NATO's illegal bombing. Indeed, international law is only written on paper, to be realised it must be supported by strong nations; however, as is clear so-called strong nations, China and Russia, always balk when confronted with western criminal aggression even though the LAW is on their side. This can only be explained by corruption and/or weakness though it is obvious that the Sino-Russian alliance is easily able to deal with US/NATO criminal enterprises, if they were indeed a balancing opposition force, which clearly they are not!

Putin, obvious coward and self-serving corrupt criminal

So what are we, the global masses, to make of the clearly LAWLESS world today and its rampant criminality/corruption? The obvious, world leaders are in cahoots. Russia has failed, though legally justified, time and again to launch its much vaunted missile air defence systems when Israel, Turkey and America illegally attack Syria. This CONSTANT failure is clearly indicative of secret deals/agendas, which cowardly mouse Putin is obviously party to. It's unheard of that a legal military presence in support of an ally would NOT defend its ally when ILLEGAL attacks are launched by those nations attempting 'regime change' in Syria, which is an illegality in itself. So what gives? Corruption and lawlessness, plain to see.

It would seem that the law does not apply to leaders of nations, so any future 'legal' justification utilised as an excuse or pretext to commit more international crimes against humanity, would be HOLLOW, as nations clearly disregard LAW whenever it suits them, without which LAWS the world would descend into chaos as is clearly evident today. So who is responsible, our leaders or their respective populations for allowing corruption, or worse COWARDICE, to persist and ruin the peace and stability of OUR world?

Indeed, the masses are responsible as it is clear that the masses are the only real force able to set things right today. Our leaders, all of them, have displayed obvious disregard for the LAW which presents the masses with two distinct options. Adopt lawlessness and reduce nations to anarchy or enforce the LAW by LEGAL democratic DEMAND and hold corrupt leaders to account for their numerous, obvious crimes. Only unified populations in various nations are able to REALISE this process, as it is clear that our leaders are corrupt criminals, ALL of them, to a greater or lesser extent.

You see people, there is no avoiding RESPONSIBILITY for your and your loved one's lives as the world has already descended into gross criminality committed by our respective non-representative governments, which groups should be held accountable by an un-corrupted judiciary as the written LAWS are as clear as they could be.

Future Consequences:

If we passively choose to ignore the many breaches of local and international law which our culpable leaders continue to commit daily -- at huge cost to local populations I might add -- then we are lost to gangsterism and it would only get much worse for us all. However, if we unite and hold our criminal governments to account and restore our nations to the people then of course we reverse the trend to catastrophe and steer our nations toward a sustainable peace, as all people everywhere abhor war, as it only serves the interests of the (criminal) few.

Have no illusions as the above clearly highlights; from Washington to Moscow to Brussels, Beijing and London, etc, rulers are rotten to the core and are working secret agendas for their own personal gain, as it is clear that populations suffering intolerable misery do not concern them, unless we make it a point of CONCERN under the penalty of death via legal revolt, however, democratic demand should always be the first option, as it usually succeeds as no government is able to resist the demands of their unified populations.

So people, either do it or lump it, as the future is as easy to read as a crime comic book.

We must accept RESPONSIBILITY for our own lives and the planet, as it is clear that criminal corrupt rule is leading us all to a literal HELL on earth -- you have been advised, though the world's global majority is already aware of the problem.

So to reduce it all to its final conclusion: make your choice PEOPLE, to live in peace and harmony or die in wars, misery and unnecessary conflicts CREATED by our corrupt, COLLUDING, criminal, UNREPRESENTATIVE, governments/leaders.

We only need to enforce EXISTING LAWS to remedy the situation -- could you imagine how our leaders would attempt to deal with their criminality in these circumstances? The prerogative is ALWAYS OURS!

---

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-2760.html>