

Self Indulgence or Sugar Plum Fairy

by zed Friday, Sep 22 2017, 1:09pm international / poetry / post how fleeting the temporal pleasures, like heroin they demand repetition until either agonising withdrawal grips the body due to lack of supply or overdose due to over indulgence yet i have never done anything in half measures totally in or out, no shades in between;

is this passion a curse, a temperament that desires to swallow universes may be a blessing, tho i am yet to decide?

i have had decades to answer this question however, my need for exotic experience propels me, i have never been one to sit and wait for anything to happen to me like the poor slobs that populate this world many weaknesses, which ruin most i have overcome with ease, no half measures makes for a powerful will so now to put this will to a breaking test until it either breaks or i break the self-imposed challenge, remember 'to rise by that which you fall' after exhausting most offerings this bankrupt world strives to obtain my folly has indeed bred a certain wisdom so now i must overcome existence itself and taste of the eternal bliss of the creative impulse itself, nothing less would satiate my screaming soul and so i took to it like a swan to a lake or a lioness to the throat of a deer i knew i was equipped so i placed a clean wax candle before my sight and sat eyes firmly fixed on the motionless flame resisting all attempts to blink soon tears trickled from the corners of my eyes but i held fast until the flame exploded into another realm carrying me or rather my unrelenting focus with it physically motionless, eyes burning, my mind began to turn to liquid, thank christ or some other mythical 'god,' i was tired of it anyway who needs a mind in the creative centre of the universe?

the world had already become a child's ant farm to me so voracious was my appetite for everything that i grazed death on numerous occasions yet i was spared not once but too many times to be mathematical probability so it seems that we are all gifted with the means to survive our challenges so please do not come crying to me find a solution within as nature has equipped us with everything we need now moving at blistering speed, tho my body remained motionless, i wondered without thinking where it would end, if end it would, but my intuition had already informed me that no end existed it was a racing continuum that confronted me, or rather in which i found myself -- what fuckin' self? there was nothing but process and light here, light of the most spectacular variety and colours all of which were well beyond our spectrum of experience, and me a glutton for such experiences plunged deeper into the kinesis until of course i lost my ability to differentiate though some would say i had died to many of the world's appeals which now appeal like a dried, sun-bleached dog shit, the food of fools i should stop this recollection here to inform readers that it was the indigenous that first taught me to sever the link between mind and body and fly, but this fixation was different i remained fixed, focused and firmly seated tho i wasn't to be found in that location it seemed i was making progress in the progress itself, i was arriving and returning simultaneously which experience neither fascinated nor perturbed me tho most would have lost their minds long prior the lioness was suffocating its prey and the swan was gliding effortlessly across the lake of existence i had already openly shit in the faces of all man's created gods which are utilised to terrorise infants and transform them into terrified adults, how tragic for the willing victims, i was piercing so many veils they appeared to be a wall of water like Niagara, i loved it, would this be my final leap or termination, it was impossible to determine

so on, on, on i went, onward to nowhere, which had a quality, an irresistible allure, tho it would terrify most to lose notions of themselves or the notion of the self itself -- so far words haven't failed me tho they are becoming abstract of necessity, so i would continue until they do fail as surely they will as i spiraled into the void full of everything, i laughed at all my past experiences and lives tho together they culminated in this moment which promised to continue

i had no idea where i was as i had no 'i' to speak of though certain qualities continued to guide me/you/everything to perfection, and perfection as we all should know is a quality not a form i had lost all connection to my body or so it seemed, tho i could care less for such dross containers, i mean really, bodies are forced to consume physical nourishment but so inefficiently that shit contains huge amounts of undigested nutrients, give me light to feed on which is clean and rarefied and requires no digestion only absorption, no waste products result from consuming light as food -- on i went and went, passing or confronting myriad qualities until a huge pillar of light formed in the shape of a phallus, not fallacy, which seemed to span the entire universe or so it seemed, a golden peach and a deep violet sugar plum presented, strange as i had already passed the realms of form so what is this, a test or a representation? either way i knew the sugar plum was a Yoni which birthed galaxies but the peach of gold perplexed me, should i consume it or leave it? without deliberating further i left it, however, it refused to remain where i had initially encountered it, it was always before me, a challenge no doubt but to what end in this endless realm?

the peach became a distraction so i decided to consume it, after which i realised it was my soul, so now my soul was no longer a source of distraction -- onward, forever onward i went until i was abruptly returned to my body by a loud knocking on my door, it wasn't the tax man, it was an old flame i hadn't seen in years so i invited her in and fucked her into oblivion, that damn sugar plum had brought me undone again! Maybe next time ...