

A Sham

by jaxie Wednesday, Sep 27 2017, 2:58am

international / prose / post

How many people world wide voted for a hyper-intrusive surveillance state? I would confidently say NONE, yet we all live in a pan-surveillance state/globe.

So let's add a little more democratic THEFTS, shall we? How many people voted for the most heinous crime of extra-judicial killings? Again none or very few demented flag-wavers. What about illegal kidnapping known as 'rendition' or indefinite detention without charge legal representation or a proven crime, definitely none; the list goes on, however, the turd on the social theft cake is pre-emptive wars of aggression designed primarily to rob weaker nations of their valuable resources and unifying stable governments -- readers would note that every nation where the criminal US military intervened is now a ruined, anarchic state of continual violence and mayhem, so much for spreading democracy, liberty and freedom to the people of the world. In fact millions of innocent civilians have been murdered directly as a result of US interventionism, notwithstanding the tens of millions more displaced. Quite a neocon 'success' story, isn't it? YET no real and effective social opposition to the criminals in power has been mounted and the result of course is that things have deteriorated to the brink of a needless nuclear war, which threatens the lives of everyone on the planet -- and you slobs thought that complacency, passivity and cowardice didn't come with a price-tag, well, think again!

Big Brother knows almost everything you do as if you are enemies of the state, personally I cannot comprehend how wet wicks and useless, cowardly gastrics that continually take it all up the arse, could be perceived as enemies of the state and require constant surveillance, however, I am not one to deny obvious reality, someone clearly fears the masses, why?

Well let's put it in terms that every man-jack could understand. If you set out to rob, steal, mass murder and commit crimes against a multitude of EXISTING local and international laws, you would have plenty to worry about, wouldn't you? So, criminal elite rulers are forced, due to THEIR fear and loathing to implement draconian laws and mass surveillance/social oppression, as that's what pan-surveillance is -- SOCIAL OPPRESSION. So we have behind the scenes, and before us, puppet politicians and those they serve, as surely you should have concluded by now that governments NO LONGER serve the PEOPLE, plain to see.

Now ask yourselves why YOU take all these gross injustices up the arse, as historically this degree of cowardly compliance is unusual. Consider your forefathers that had mettle and fought for reasonable living conditions and fair treatment/pay, freedom from oppression and the liberties which we only recently forfeited due to the cowardice of our youth. The secret of social action is of course social networking, NOT digital networking, which is essentially anti-social. All generations prior to the digital age, which I would name the 'WE' generations, were/are in stark contrast to the manufactured 'ME' generations of today that clearly are not worth a pinch of shit. So supreme is the cowardice, narcissism and self-involvement of millennials that they are unable to form solid EFFECTIVE group partnerships but they ARE socialised to be obedient to authority.

I once entered a room full of millennials, every person in the room, waiting for some lecture, had their face buried either in a laptop or smartphone yet they were sitting like sardines in immediate proximity, clearly the lack of the most basic social skills went 'screaming' through the room, developed of course by digital mediums funded by the CIA, if one cares to research the matter. So where would it all end? In WWII, no doubt. A highly likely outcome as subjects not people have already allowed strangers to pat their private parts at airports. Further social deterioration and ultra-violent State crimes are a GIVEN.

Good luck you useless, alienated wankers, you deserve everything you get. Fortunately previous generations which are now elderly have lived fruitful productive SOCIAL lives guided by their inalienable rights, freedoms, real democratic prerogatives and consciences. What are they I hear digitally enslaved millennials ask?

It becomes evident beyond argument that 'democracy' or representative government, as it exists today, is a HUGE FAILURE, mainly due to lack of involvement. Nevertheless, it is also plain that minority criminal elites are in mortal dread of the masses, so what would you care TO DO ABOUT IT, bend over some more or stand on your own two feet and take RESPONSIBILITY for your lives and YOUR nation?

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-2899.html>