The world cannot, and hopefully will not, allow lunatic Trump, goaded by the Pentagon, to which he deferred foreign policy matters, to initiate a war with North Korea.

If the USA should deploy more than one aircraft carrier to the Korean penninsular then it is a given that the USA would intend to strike. HOWEVER, China has already stated it would not allow the US to attack NK, not an empty threat, as China possesses an inexpensive easily mass produced asymmetric advantage, a weapon easily able to vaporise nuclear powered aircraft carriers, which cost billions to develop and manufacture.

China, known militarily around the globe as having produced the Art of War -- Sun Tzu, has wisely developed relatively inexpensive, rapidly produced highly effective weapons to wipe out American super-carriers without which the USA is lost at sea. One of these tactically nuclear armed missiles has a range in excess of 3,500K and travels at such speed that it would be virtually impossible to shoot down, notwithstanding the amount of these inexpensive easily deployed and launched missiles targeting sitting duck carriers. So it's almost a given that if Russia or China see a number of carriers approaching NK, they would warn the US and then vaporise the carriers if warnings were not heeded, which would leave the USA with few options, either to escalate a failed operation into a nuclear world war with superpowers or stand down. And as we all know the US is incapable of standing down. So WWII it is, IF the lunatics in Washington make the wrong decision, and surely they will, which other nation on earth would tolerate a buffoon and unstable ignoramus like Trump as its president?

It is clear that any attempt by the USA to attack NK would immediately involve China and then Russia, though Putin is known to back down at the most critical times. In any case, China is easily able to deal with America's naval fleets, which are antiquated in today's asymmetric digital world of cheap, effective and devastating weaponry.

Due to outsourcing to profit-only-driven corporations involved in the American defence industry -- please understand, unlike Russia and China which never outsource critical arms development and manufacture to greedy corporations -- the USA has lost its edge. The current weaponry of China and Russia far exceeds in every respect that of the USA, though of course weapons manufacturers in the US have made a killing at the moron tax-payers expense. American citizens should also consider the fact that the corporations and banks that exploit and enslave them have also subverted the strength of the nation due to their limitless lust for money/profit. Surely it should stand to reason that profit-only-driven corporations are primarily concerned with PROFIT not developing cost effective, superior strategic and effective weaponry, hence more aircraft carriers continue to be produced at staggering cost by the USA and of course the infamous, cost blow-out flying duck, the F-35 strike fighter, which F-16 class fighter jets have no difficulty blowing out of the sky. However, State, as opposed to commercial, run weapons manufacturers are concerned only with effective, tactically superior and cost effective solutions, which has led to the US being literally left behind in the arms race.

So as previous imbecile president Bush foolishly stated, "bring it on;" the sooner the world puts an end to civilian killing, resource thieving, war mongering America, the better. In fact we sincerely hope the Pentagon and Trump launch an attack, as the American nation is divorced from REALITY and is led by a president that has no idea of Reality outside 'reality TV.'
