

The State of Slavery

by james Saturday, Oct 14 2017, 11:23pm

international / prose / post

Most Americans today imagine that slavery ended with the civil war, a war in reality fought for economic not moral reasons. Nevertheless, the abolition of slavery was presented to the world as the underlying reason for this economic war. If you doubt this conclusion simply assess the status of the 'yez bozz' black American AFTER THE CIVIL WAR, as they were/are portrayed in modern media, particularly Hollywood in the early decades of the 20th century. Yet it wasn't until the late 60's, that MLK, Macolm X and other black liberationists actually made some progress toward black social equality and real freedoms, 100 years after the civil war; there are many examples of blacks in the 60's fighting for their rights promised a hundred years back -- lol -- and note how white elites murdered most of these activists and suppressed news of others using white public water bubblers and sitting in white areas of segregated buses and other segregated social spaces.

So it's plain, slavery did not end after the civil war in fact it expanded to now include whites which are the majority of slaves in America today. Of course distasteful steel chains were replaced by debt/economic slavery which is the principle means whereby entire populations are enslaved today.

However, there were very active and violent attempts to gain equality during the 20th century particularly in the UNION movement, which did succeed due to the STAUNCH unity of members, what's that I hear, 'me' generation (millennials) say? Indeed, freedom is never bestowed it must be fought for and vigilantly preserved -- big fail millennials.

And so ruling elites have entire populations in their pockets today, the union movement is all but destroyed; in Australia, we actually witnessed, a union -- the SDA -- side with a corporation in a legal battle AGAINST workers (believe it or not) who were denied full payment for work performed. The case, won by the workers, hardly received the attention it deserved and it remains the biggest travesty ever committed by any union in this country, which union had a very strong connection to the now self-serving, opportunistic political opposition leader, Bill Shorten and I hope that FACT assists Aussies in determining a future vote -- it's not the Labor Party that is the problem it's BILL SHORTEN, clearly he requires removal as leader of the party before and federal election. But to return to the essential topic.

Slavery today is almost universal and infects all nations, developed and developing, and note how modern slavery is far more efficient than it has ever been, populations today are debt/economically enslaved, which obvious fact is never covered by the appalling, partisan, elite owned mass media.

Now consider the arguments against the reality of slavery which amount to anyone if they work hard can be a 'success,' what a croc of shit! The earning and wealth disparities between elite banker/corporate entites and average workers who slave for these companies is so broad/wide it could never be breached EXCEPT if one adopts the immoral, dastardly ideology of the elites. Which amounts to exploitation, unfairness, dishonesty, lies, TREACHERY and a host of other sordid methodologies few people with a basic sense of morality would adopt; however, sociopaths delight in such, as is evident today, corporations are brimming with these SICK personalities, which is why they are what they are. For instance, the USA now boasts a pathologically flawed sociopathic -- "annihilate North Korea" -- president which social culmination is no surprise to anyone with a functioning brain.

So how FREE are you? Most people struggle just to survive from week to week, with wages remaining stagnant for decades -- no real unions -- while corporate/banker profits go through the roof, in fact they have never had it so good and this outcome is NO ACCIDENT. The taxes received from large corporations in the sixties, seventies and eighties compared to the figures of tax evading mega-corporations of today are an indictment in themselves. But if we allow criminals and sociopaths to have influence over our lives, then what else would we expect?

Exactly, the appalling wealth disparities and standards of living between average citizens and the elites has never been greater. And to think how our fathers fought and died to gain a fair shake of the wealth that workers produce.

Major corps seem to think that they appeared from the sky, however, reality dictates that no company would exist without its rank and file workers. Yet these workers have allowed themselves to be castrated by evil elites that continue to reap outrageous profits on the backs of workers' labour and their above mentioned sordid criminal activities.

I have brought you to the obvious conclusion, that it is the passive, frightened masses, not the criminal sociopathic elites, which are to blame for the current predicament we ALL now face globally; remember globalism? I wonder who engineered that international exploitation outrage and why not throw in tax havens, which average people are economically excluded from utilising and on it goes and goes because WE allow it

If you're beginning to feel ashamed and shafted then realise that you only have yourself to blame as your fathers, mothers, previous generations fought to obtain every right freedom and fair economic privilege, which today have been forfeited without a murmur of mass complaint. Furthermore, modern alienated 'me' generations have allowed pan-surveillance, which ensures more insidious fear in populations and accept corporations exploiting the low wages of foreign nation while dumping local workers in the gutter, so much for loyalty and appreciation! But that behaviour is characteristic of sociopaths that only think of themselves, so lump it, as you have begged for it, you pathetic white and coloured slave trash.

Of course this piece is not out to receive popular approval as the subject and causes are painfully uncomfortable to confront, no-one likes to be called out as a slave.

Though I would offer solutions. First impose REAL globalism, which means not only for multi-national BUT for workers, equal pay internationally for the same work that strategy alone cures corporations running overseas to exploit enslaved workers in other oppressed nations.

Elect only those representatives that regulate these rogues and tax them appropriately, large corporate entities and their cowboy lying executive staff; and if they endeavour to evade tax simply impose harsh penalties and/or nationalise them, as should be the case, as all wealth is owned by the people, you see national resource wealth is actually the property of the people as is the result of their labour but you will never see that TRUTH on any front page.

The masses today allow large lying criminal corporate entities to exploit, pillage, rape and destroy environments (pollution/climate change) all in the name of profit, which they keep to themselves as is plain to see, notwithstanding that all resource and other productive wealth belongs clearly to the masses but if the masses are not worth a pinch of shit and allow themselves to be exploited, abused and vanquished, then clearly they deserve EVERYTHING they get as expendable slaves of the most pathetic variety.

Now off you go in denial, as hardly anyone today is willing to face the truth about themselves, let alone DO something to remedy the appallingly unjust, unfair, situation the world finds itself in today.

Have a nice day, you enslaved, gutless, chicken-shits; until you realise that you must fight for your freedoms and rights like your fathers before you, YOU WILL REMAIN PATHETIC, EXPENDABLE, ABUSED SLAVES!

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-2938.html>