

Pointing the Finger or Taking Responsibility

by jaxie Friday, Dec 8 2017, 10:36pm

international / prose / post

Indeed, laying blame is always easier than taking responsibility which involves remedial ACTION. I am always struck by how the American media leads the population in the blame game. It's Trump's fault, or the Russians or North Korea's, whoever/whatever but never our fault! The point is Americans have one of the safest Constitutions in the world yet the PEOPLE ignore or avoid THEIR responsibility to remove any president/government that has proven destructive to the nation, and surely, among other past administrations, errant and shallow thinking buffoon Trump is a prime example of a destructive incompetent dumb president that is ruining the nation as I write this piece.

Trump's latest mindless blunder is his unwise unnecessary support for Netanyahu allowing Israel to make Jerusalem its capital, notwithstanding the city is central to two of the largest faiths in the world, Christianity and Islam -- no one nation should be able to 'own' Jerusalem, clearly it should be a UN protectorate for the sake of PEACE and stability, Trump has only inflamed the situation which most likely would have repercussions at home on U.S. soil.

But all this is lost on completely captured dunce Trump who is serving as the fall guy for deep state agendas and interests, that is all US presidents are worth today, expendable, (media) attention grabbing distractions, while the real rulers of America ply their nefarious trade behind the scenes.

However, that reality should not negate the clear responsibility of American citizens, as real democracy is a participatory political system, not a spectator sport, though the privately owned mass media does everything in its power to make it so.

Real POWER in any real democracy always rests with the people, however, if the people forfeit their rights and responsibilities there are many sinister forces that would gladly take power, as is clearly the case in America and most so-called democratic western nations today.

In Australia for instance, a colonial outpost of the USA, it is not surprising that its LACKEY government has passed laws similar to America in regard to 'foreign agents' in order to prevent undue influence from other nations, yet the absurdity of Australia passing these laws is that the major parties ALWAYS slavishly defer to Washington/America a self-interested foreign power if ever there was one!

Now enter the mass media which job is to distract and propagandise not make people aware of reality. The 'news' is focusing on China's influence over certain former and standing parliamentarians, notwithstanding that America is without peer as the most influential FOREIGN power in Australia, to the point where it unilaterally arranges for the removal of democratically elected leaders it does not like, Gough Whitlam for instance; the CIA was instrumental in his removal because they viewed Whitlam as a socialist and too independent of America, indeed Whitlam was an internationalist, it was Whitlam who recognised China and wished to open diplomatic and mutually beneficial trade relations well before criminal Nixon was instructed to do the same by American ruling interests. But America had decided that Whitlam must go and arranged the biggest scandal in Australia's political history, the truth of this scurrilous event is now widely known.

Yet destructive America is not the focus of undue influence because useless, in every sense, politicians today strain their necks to serve Washington, including the Trump regime, notwithstanding that the leader of the opposition, stated openly in the media that Trump is “barking mad, ” clearly an accurate assessment but does that fact diminish US influence over ‘sovereign’ Australia? Not in the least, hence no focus on American serving Aussies as “foreign agents,” though if this new law is applied to the letter, American serving major party political lackeys CLEARLY are foreign agents acting in the best interests of a foreign government, give me and Australia a break!

The above is yet another example (outside America) of a population that has forfeited its democratic prerogatives and allowed nefarious self-serving elite minorities to lord over the nation and its VAST WEALTH, which the rightful owners, THE PEOPLE see very little of.

So who is REALLY to blame, expendable puppet politicians that are always blamed or THE PEOPLE for relinquishing their rights? The answer is obvious, perhaps too obvious and uncomfortable for most -- BUT THERE IS NO AVOIDING REALITY, try as most denialists would.

So when you see all the distorted and distractive crap in the media leading mindless masses to false conclusions or to blind alleys, REMEMBER that the ONUS is ALWAYS YOURS to change what you know requires changing.

Do puppet, traitorous leaders really serve the best interests of their people and their nations or do they serve unrepresentative minority elite interests? You tell me and while you’re at it pull your thumb out of your arse if you really wish to save yourself and your nation.

So rather than point the finger and complain, DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT -- at the very least voice your politically incorrect opinions constantly on every medium available and VOTE for anyone other than OWNED major party candidates; and do not FEAR, my toothless grandmother could run the nation better than Turnbull, Shorten, Trump or any other captive, elite serving, PUPPET!

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-3041.html>