

The Seeds of Self-Destruction

by jude Thursday, Jan 17 2013, 9:35pm

international / prose / post

Every species on the planet has encoded in its DNA the seeds of its own destruction. Should a species become a threat to the ecosystem then self-destruct mechanisms 'kick in' and there is nothing that can reverse the inevitable pruning back of the species until it poses no threat.

Humans have populated to the point where all life on earth is now threatened. The human faeces, I mean 'species,' has left little room for other species to survive and as a result nature's safety valves have been triggered.

You may have noticed the complete paralysis regarding curtailing social and environmental catastrophe, remedial options are plentiful but no-one is able to reverse the destructive trend.

Millennialists cry woe, 'the end is near,' while fatalistically accepting certain doom -- now consider the millions of Jews led to their deaths by a handful of Nazi guards, reason dictated that resistance was the best option but the Jews, which could have easily overwhelmed their guards, chose instead to passively go to their deaths, a similar situation is occurring today but on a global scale.

Reason has been abandoned in favour of irrationality, paralysis, fear and fantasy; those who are aware lament the blind pursuit of extinction/death by the masses; however, forces more powerful than a petty, created species are in play, nature's will to harmony and re-balance reigns supreme. Man's arrogance is about to confront reality!

If we accepted responsibility for our own lives then no political leader would be able to implement 'laws' of indefinite detention, torture or illegal kidnapping, much less brandish a 'kill list' as a badge of honour!

Our leaders cannot do anything without our approval, whether by active or passive consent.

So the next time you point the finger be aware that you are pointing it at yourself. No leader government or State apparatus is able to resist the majority will of the people -- you are responsible and there's no avoiding that fact!.

So enjoy the rapid social decline, it promises to be a very brief but extremely painful ride.