

Dormant

by jake Wednesday, Apr 17 2013, 11:19am

international / poetry / post the mute mount

in the distance appears as something it is not at rest now but ferocious and merciless when active the mount is a volcano in repose

do not be deceived by its snow-covered summit it hides explosive fury and rivers of lava - endless fire-streams that reduce everything for miles around to a moonscape

things are never what they seem, everything reverts to itself and a volcano is a time-bomb ready to explode and wreak havoc across the land

mega-tonnes of power in one volcano how much more in a caldera, a nursery of volcanoes - Rabaul and Yellowstone are overdue, as is the big one along the fault in California humans are so arrogant in times of dormancy;

they have forgotten how vulnerable and insignificant they really are soon, very soon ...

Rabaul Caldera

---

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-500.html>