

The Universal Push to Consciousness

by justine Saturday, May 18 2013, 11:02am

international / prose / post

Imagine purchasing a superb racing car and only using one tenth of its power; why make the purchase if we're not willing to put our 'foot to the floor' and experience the full potential of the racing machine?

We could easily draw an analogy, as most humans live in ideological boxes so restrictive in scope that such an existence could accurately be described as a mind prison.

Ask anyone what the purpose of life is and you'll be inundated with formula responses but rarely a spontaneous knowing response.

It soon becomes apparent that most people haven't any idea what the purpose of life actually is, yet we are connected to an intelligent universe that clearly is in the process of evolving. We need only realise that creations that fail to perform harmoniously with greater creation become extinct or a failed design/species.

Now consider the absolute lowest form of human activity possible -- WAR! Millions of years of evolution instinctively inform us that war is the most primitive form of communication between members of our species and that needless destruction and savagery are failed enterprises. The suicide rate among soldiers today now exceeds the casualty rate of combat! Why? Simply because WE KNOW BETTER.

A clear signal is being transmitted to everyone engaged in this clearly perverse activity that war is redundant and must be abandoned if we are to survive.

Now consider the minority interests that orchestrate and profit from wars and their desire to convince humanity that permanent war is natural and necessary -- is there anything more perverse, for pity's sake!

We know the identities of these flawed and very sick individuals and we know the solution or cure if we wish to survive and live a harmonious existence with each other and our living environment. Nature shows us that flawed and failed life forms cease to exist. Yet we allow these sick individuals to influence our lives and in some instances -- America -- rule over the majority of balanced, healthy human beings.

Certain things we know and instinctively respond to -- now consider that humans must undergo mind bending training and indoctrination to learn to kill their innocent brothers and sisters -- an activity the USA pursues on a daily basis; however, it must be emphasised that America today is in the grip of a nefarious sociopathic minority that controls the nation.

"Permanent war" -- who are they trying to convince? Surely a remedy is required before it is too late.

If we decide to live outside the box this nefarious minority group has designed, our perceptions become broader and clearer and our unrestricted consciousness begins to expand until we become aware, as every other life form is aware, of our life's purpose, which, whatever individual specific direction it takes, does not involve senseless destruction and chaos but harmonious, creative and rewarding pursuits.

<http://www.informationclearinghouse.info/article34986.htm>

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-566.html>