

REVOLT: It's Only Natural

by rashid Wednesday, Jun 5 2013, 11:54am

international / prose / post

Populations from the most historically repressive regimes are rebelling world-wide. There comes a time when fear loses its ability to terrorise and manage populations; the slightest social triggers set these societies aflame, revolutionary forces are set loose and societies are purged of the corrupt vermin that have abused and exploited the masses for generations. Turkey is the latest example of a population that has had enough elite rule and the CORRUPTION, repression and INJUSTICE that goes with it.

Turkey follows many North African nations whose populations successfully rebelled against their corrupt leaders. The surprising common denominator in all these successful revolts is Islam! In rebellion it appears that Muslims world-wide have finally found UNITY and brotherhood. Of course notable exceptions exist, Kuwait, Qatar, and Saudi Arabia, remain servile to American interests; nevertheless, if we recognise a trend it's the moderates that will have the day, not the American backed extremists -- fundamentalists are recognised as self-serving opportunists that serve infidels/money not Islam.

These traitorous minority groups hide behind perverse interpretations of the Koran to justify their murderous extremism, whereas moderates put aside their minor differences for the greater good of Islam world-wide.

In stark contrast to Muslim freedom fighters are the cowering populations of the West which are displaying the most extraordinary cowardice and lack of spirit in circumstances that should have sparked open revolts against new totalitarian social policies -- the United States stands out as the most cowardly nation/population in the western world, especially given the oppressive policies pursued by Washington over the past two decades.

As populations everywhere fight for Freedom, Americans cower and cringe in the face of minority engineered oppression and systemic crime.

Nations of the world are clearly in transition, the new centres of power and influence will undoubtedly be located in the East. It's simply the cycle of civilisations in progress. It should never be forgotten that Westerners were living in caves and fucking their sisters when Indian and Chinese scholars were writing 'poetry' -- a linguistic indication of advanced civilisation.

Postscript:

It should be noted that all previous major shifts of power and influence have been associated with extreme violence, chaos and suffering. Interestingly, the American population has no taste for violent struggle -- another symptom of a failing, cowardly and spent culture/society.

<http://tinyurl.com/lqo2t6k>

