

Bradley Manning's Final Plea and Jumping to Hasty Conclusions

by jude Thursday, Aug 15 2013, 3:18pm

international / prose / post

I could cite a few historical examples but I won't, simply because the masses are not worth a pinch of shit, nor do they deserve a detailed explanation; however, a succinct appraisal is warranted.

Bradley Manning, Hero

We do not know the reality behind Manning's last minute admission of 'wrong-doing' and his 'begging for mercy' from proven war criminals and mass murderers (the U.S. military) but we do know that Manning's apology must be appreciated in the context of a young idealistic man who has been isolated for years and subjected to gross and subtle psychological manipulation and TORTURE -- not a soul on this earth could have come out of that situation in tact or without suffering some form of mental fatigue and confusion.

Nevertheless, Manning's about-face confession is as damning for the Pentagon as the military court's verdict damns the White House. It was known long before the trial began that there was no hope of a fair trial or fair outcome for brave, young Manning. Washington got what it wanted via Manning's 'military defence;' make no mistake, everyone was against him, including his defence which convinced him to plea and beg for mercy. The entire proceedings were a massive fraud, deception and sham in order to arrive at this outcome.

I wrote previously that Manning's defence had taken the wrong course by legitimising the farcical trial and Kangaroo court by proceeding with a defence rather than condemning the illegitimate proceedings/trial and demanding that an independent and impartial international court hear the strong case of flagrant war crimes.

How on earth could Manning get a fair trial when the criminally accused sat in judgement of the moral accuser, I surely would like to know -- impossible!

I do not expect the American population to comprehend the obvious or to drag their tiny minds away from inane Hollywood 'social opium' productions or the continuous effluent that issues from the U.S. mass media; it is enough the entire world outside America is acutely aware of reality and the LIES and crimes of Washington.

The historical record stands inviolable -- the Manning trial is already recorded as one of the most grievous miscarriages of justice in HISTORY.

Manning remains a man of outstanding character, exceptional courage, moral fibre and possessed of a conscience the world would do well to emulate.

Now to something all humanity knows instinctively -- JUSTICE WILL BE DONE one way or the other, and I'm afraid the other carries the highest possible price/penalty.

As for the despicable and supremely cowardly American population, your fate as a nation is sealed -- what would you expect after allowing criminals to usurp the moral right and replace it with the most brutish criminality the world has seen in over half a century?

As a nation, America has clearly 'made its bed' and I assure everyone that nature and the greater harmony of existence is not mocked, it will clinically dispense the exact proportion of return for the heinous crimes and unjust actions that modern America has wrought on others around the globe.

<http://consortiumnews.com/2013/08/15/americas-upside-down-morality/>

---

Jungle Drum Prose/Poetry. <http://jungledrum.lingama.net/news/story-751.html>